Juvenile pleads, sentenced to 10

By BRENT MACEY

A 17-year-old Diamondhead resident was sentenced to 10 years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary in Parchman Wednesday after pleading guilty to charges of burglary and two counts of possession of a controlled substance.

Jimmy Buford, whose case had been handed over to Circuit Court from Juvenile Court, received a seven-year sentence on the burglary charge and two three-year sentences on each of the possession charges.

Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin ruled the burglary and possession charges run consecutively and the two possession charges run concurrently.

The charges against Buford stem from the burglary of a Diamondhead doctor's office last July, Hancock County Investigator Alvin Ladner said.

Also in Circuit Court action this week,

LuJean Sullivan, 27, of Shoreline Park, pled guilty to burglary charges.

A five-year prison sentence was suspended and Sullivan was placed on three years probation.

Sullivan's brother, Jimmy Sullivan, 26, accused of the same crime and also charged with possession of a controlled substance, did not appear for his trial although he was in court earlier Tuesday.

Both the Sullivans were out of jail on bond.

Ladner noted Jimmy Sullivan did not return from lunch, "He is believed to have fled from our jurisdiction," Ladner said.

The investigator noted Jimmy Sullivan was facing an habitual offender charge which carries a life sentence penalty.

Both the Sullivans were allegedly involved in three burglaries in Shoreline Park in July.

TRAIN DERAILMENT—Bay St. Louis Patrolman George Weatherly checks Washington Street Railroad Crossing, Bay St. Louis, which received minor damages from two Louisville and Nashville box cars around 2:30 a.m. Wednesday. Bay Chief of Police Douglas Williams said the two box cars were on the sidetrack at the time of the derailment. Williams said the two cars which jumped the track during a light rain contained pulp board and cigarettes. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas).

Alleged burglars caught in the act

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Two Long Beach men are being held in Hancock County Jail after they were nabbed by law enforcement personnel Wednesday morning apparently burglarizing a residence in Bay St. Louis.

Investigator Delbert Seay of the Hancock Sheriff's Department Wednesday afternoon reported Mike Sylvester Cuevas, 29, of Route 2, Box 327 and Richard James Waaga, 30, of Route 1, Box 120 are both incarcerated in lieu of $50,000 bond each.

The two are scheduled for an Oct. 27 preliminary hearing before Justice Court Judge John Chevis at 6 p.m. charged with burglary of a dwelling.

Seay said the two were discovered apparently burglarizing Mr. and Mrs. James Rutherford's home at 114 Paradise Lane at about 10 a.m.

that morning and returned to find a pickup truck parked in the car port and saw several items from her home stacked in and around the vehicle.

The investigator said the woman then telephoned the Bay St. Louis Police Department from a neighbor's house.

Seay explained all available units of the Bay Police and sheriff's departments were summoned to the scene.

Deputy Dennis Tartavouille was the first at the scene, found the two still in the residence and apprehended Cuevas inside the home, the investigator said.

Meanwhile, Waaga fled into a nearby wooded area, he noted.

Seay said Waaga was apprehended about 20 minutes after the first arrest near the intersection of US-90 and Washington Street by Bay Patrolmen Larry Ladner and Jim Koch.

The investigator said three shotguns and a cast net were found in the pickup and a microwave oven was found resting in a doorway by law enforcement personnel.

Williams reported the pickup is owned by Cuevas.

Also participating in the search for Waaga were Williams, Seay, Deputy

Bay trustees threaten to fire school principal

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Bay Junior High School Principal W.J. Cameron faces firing if he does not recommend someone to fill the school band director position vacancy.

That was the decision of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District Board of Trustees at a Monday night meeting.

Howard Sheppard, North Bay Elementary School music instructor, at a board meeting last month charged district administrators with employment discrimination.

Sheppard is black. J. D. McCullouch, superintendent of education, at that meeting stated he assumed complete responsibility for a breach in district policy by not promptly posting notices of the vacancy at all schools in the system.

The vacancy occurred in the summer when Carolyn Hamilton terminated her employment with the district.

The junior high director also acts as assistant Bay Senior High School Tiger Pride Band director.

Trustee Maurice Singleton, the only black board member, Monday night offered the motion after McCullouch reported Cameron had not yet recommended someone for the directorship.

"It's a poor system when the principal can't abide by the policy," Singleton stated.

He noted the board had previously recommended the vacant position be filled.

"If the board lets this happen (not filling the opening) the board should give up its governing power," the trustee stated.

"If we don't get a recommendation by the next meeting, we will consider dismissal of the principal," he heatedly said.

"If he (Cameron) can't put in a recommendation because he has to follow policy, then we don't need him there," Singleton stated.

"I hope to God the board gets up and follows policy," he added.

Cyril Glover, board president pro tem, asked Singleton if he would like to offer a motion.

Singleton stated, "I make the motion that we get a recommendation according to the policy."

Larry Wayne Peterson is seeking the position as District 3 Representative to the Hancock County School Board.

He is 35 years of age and has lived in Hancock County, in the Necaise Crossing Community with his wife, the former Linda Saucier since 1969.

They have one son, Alan, age 4.

He was born in Bay St. Louis, raised near DeLisle, attended DeLisle Elementary, and graduated from Pass Christian High School.

Peterson has been active in the Harrison-Hancock Little League as an officer, director, and coach for the past several years.

He has been employed by Rockwell International, Rocketdyne Division at NSTL for more than five years.

"If elected to this position I pledge to improve our school system and our children's education," Peterson said.

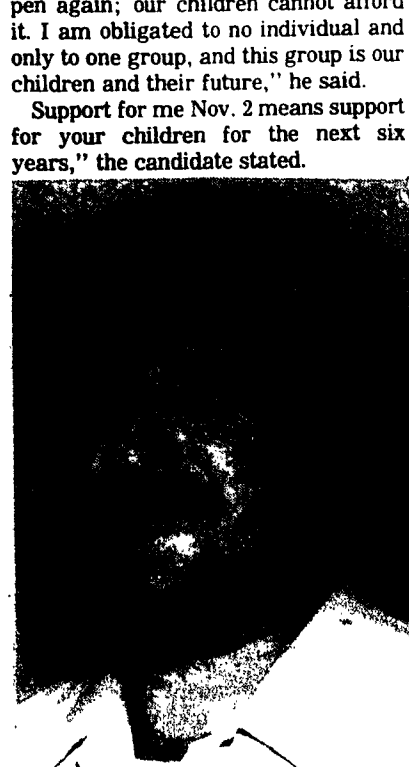

"I will seek to increase the local supplement and benefits for our teachers, and also encourage a raise in pay for our teachers at the state level," he continued.

"I will refrain from hiring relatives to positions in our school system, and verify that all teachers are certified and qualified to teach our children. I will work closely with the superintendent and other board members to improve our schools and our children's education," he added.

"I will seek to reverse the adverse publicity this school system has received in the past two to three years," Peterson stated.

"If elected I assure you the controversy around the tornado repair at Gulfview Elementary will never happen again; our children cannot afford it. I am obligated to no individual and only to one group, and this group is our children and their future," he said.

Support for me Nov. 2 means support for your children for the next six years," the candidate stated.

VA to collect fee on home loans

The Veterans Administration will begin collecting a funding fee of one-half percent of its guaranteed or direct home loans closed on or after Oct. 1, 1982.

The new fee is a requirement of the recent Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act, according to Mike Ladner, Hancock Veterans Service officer.

Willie Fletcher, VA loan guaranty officer, for the Jackson regional office, said the fee is payable for both home and mobile home loan guaranties.

"The only exceptions are loans made to veterans receiving VA compensation for military service-connected disabilities or who, but for receipt of retirement pay, would be entitled to receive compensation," he stressed "and loans made to surviving spouses of veterans who died in service or from a service-connected disability."

Fletcher said that the fee may be included in the loan and paid from loan proceeds without regard to provisions limiting the loan amount to the reasonable value of the property.

the veteran calling our loan guaranty division to request a statement reflecting one of the specific exemptions."

He added that if it is impossible to verify the veteran's status prior to the closing of the loan, the fee should be remitted to the VA by the lender.

If the exemption is confirmed later, the fee will be refunded to the lender to be applied to the outstanding loan balance, or direct to the veteran if it was paid in cash.

Persons wanting more information on the loan-guarantee fee or an exemption statement should telephone the Jackson VA Regional Office toll free at 1-800-682-5270.

By BRENT MACEY

Governor William Winter used his visit to the DuPont Plant in Delsile Tuesday as an opportunity to emphasize the importance of education and the need to train personnel in Mississippi to draw industry to this state.

Winter, addressing a group of Harrison County representatives and businessmen at Diamondhead after the tour, stated, "The most competitive game is competition for jobs and the process of getting folks to the point where they can make a good living."

He noted per-capita income is directly related to education and the quality of life in Mississippi.

Winter's comments were supportive of statements made earlier that day by the Delsile Plant Manager David Settle. Settle noted some 5,400 applicants were rejected when the Delsile plant opened in 1970.

"Most of the applicants were turned away because of lack of qualifications," Settle said about the plant which now employs some 550 workers.

At Diamondhead Winter stated efforts should be made to give Mississippians an access to educational skills needed to help them compete in the job market.

"It has been my observation that given a choice, most people will opt to make something of themselves and develop themselves," he said.

He stated studies show that 42 percent of all Mississippians do not graduate from high school. The national average shows 10 percent do not graduate.

"If we could drop that 42 percent to 10 percent we would add $5 million to the state's economy," Williams said.

In addition, Winter said welfare payments are the second largest source of income for Mississippians. In 34 of 82 Mississippi counties, Winters said welfare checks are the largest source of income.

"We are paying a heavy price for ignorance in this state and we are going to have to do something about it," he said.

Winter stressed the need to create a kindergarten program in the state. He pointed to statistics which show that early education helps greatly to prepare children for the job market.

"If we don't get these young people off on the right track then they are never going to catch up," he said.

He complimented Coast legislators, stating, "If we had everyone in the legislature with the same priorities, we'd be a lot further down the road in terms of education..."

QUESTION - The best way to sober up a drunk is:

- Sleep it off
- Cold shower
- Black coffee
- Exercise

ANSWER - A cold shower will produce a wet drunk; black coffee will produce a wide-awake drunk; exercise will produce a tired drunk. Contrary to these popular myths, the only thing that will sober up a drunk is time. It takes approximately one hour for the alcohol in each drink to be eliminated from the body. The liver oxidizes 95% of the alcohol, while only 5% is eliminated as urine and perspiration.

WHAT ABOUT THE RIGHTS OF VICTIMS?

When a thief breaks into your home and robs you or destroys your property, you suffer a real loss.

When he's caught and convicted, the criminal may be sent to jail to pay his debt to society. But what about his debt to you?

Who pays to fix your house? Who pays to replace your valuables?

It just doesn't seem fair that you or your insurance company should have to pay. Especially when the guilty person has already been caught and convicted.

Make The Criminals Pay.

Why not make the convicted criminal pay for the damage he did?

You can. That's what victim restitution is all about. It's a law recently passed by the Mississippi Legislature.

But long before it became part of the law, James Thomas was working to make victim restitution a vital part of our criminal justice system.

They'll Think Twice Before They Act.

"Equal protection under the law is the foundation of our democracy. But sometimes it seems like criminals are more equal than their victims."

"I feel that a criminal should have to pay for any damage he's caused his victims. As Assistant District Attorney, I've routinely recommended that restitution be made a part of the sentencing of criminals."

"As Judge, I'll administer justice fairly, firmly and impartially. So criminals will think twice before they act."

He Has The Experience We Need.

James Thomas has spent his career in the judicial system of Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties.

He grew up in South Mississippi, the son of Christine Thomas and the late L. E. "Tommy" Thomas of Gulfport.

After graduating from U.S.M., he earned a law degree from Ole Miss and went to work as a lawyer in private practice.

Now he lives in Biloxi with his wife Sue, a Biloxi schoolteacher, and their 3-year-old daughter Tiffany.

He's In Touch With The People.

As Assistant District Attorney, he's worked for all the people in Harrison, Hancock and Stone Counties for nearly a decade.

He's prosecuted hundreds of cases in the very courtroom he'll preside over as judge.

He knows the law. He knows how our Circuit Court works. And he's in touch with the people he serves.

On November 2nd, let's elect James Thomas, Circuit Court Judge.

EDITORIAL

Mrs. Inez Adele Favre

Mrs. Inez Adele Favre, a longtime associate of The Sea Coast Echo, met her last deadline Wednesday. She was involved with the Echo from 1942 until her retirement in 1981 with the exception of several years of working with the Hancock County Eagle Newspaper. She enjoyed 81 years in her native Hancock County, raised ten children of which many were youngsters at the death of her husband A.G. Favre.

A person who seemed to be the friend of and known by so many people, she will be remembered by so many for years to come.

To her sons, daughters, sister, brothers, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, we too will always miss her smiling face.

Bits 'n pieces

Business was brisk Saturday night at the Hancock Jail with registrations reaching a peak of 48 occupants. Since this facility was constructed for less than 20 inmates in the mid-thirties, it was overcrowded with folks having to sleep on the floor.

We are in need of a new jail and we hope it is not too far in the future, as the normal population for the facility in recent weeks has been in the 30's.

There has been some talk about a new jail in recent years, and action is definitely needed.

The 'witches brew' is brewing at Triton's Chamber of Horrors for the nights of October 29, 30 and 31.

A representative of Triton told us this week that the spirits will be out in full force for the three nights. A visit is not recommended for those with a weak heart.

As you know, Triton is the Mardi Gras organization which provides a parade on Mardi Gras Day.

Proceeds from the Chamber of Horrors go towards the krewe's parade.

The Chamber of Horrors will be at the krewe's den at 306 Coleman Avenue, Waveland.

Bay St. Louis high school football fans will all have to travel out of town Friday night to follow their respective teams.

The Bay High Tigers will travel to Hurley Friday to Tangle with East Central.

East Central should be a test for Bay High as they are still trying to figure how they lost to Pass Christian last week.

St. Stanislaus will journey to Wiggins to do battle with the Tomcats. The Rocks will have to have a great effort to bring a victory home.

Hancock North Central will host Vancleave in Hawk Stadium. The Hawks will have their hands full with the Bulldogs, but could topple them.

The Pass Christian Pirates, who tasted victory the first time last week will journey to Pearl River Central. The Pirates hope to keep their winning ways and score victory number two for the season.

We hope everyone will enjoy their high school football games this weekend.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I can advertise for less in a penny savor shopper than the local newspaper. And my ads look about the same. Why Should I Stay With The News?

Dear WSISWTN: The "news" in your question is the answer.

People buy and read newspapers—other advertising sheets, as the one you mention, attempt to set themselves up as alternatives. But, they aren't. To be alternative, is to be a substitute. Without news they are simply not the same.

Many businessmen, like you, are misled into buying space with "ads only" publications. The space is usually cheaper, as well it should be.

But the limitation is people want news in their newspapers. A recent study found more than 90 per cent of adults had read a newspaper in the past month. And they were being read for news. Surprisingly, to many critics, those studied were reading newspapers in addition to using other mass media.

Another reason for sticking with a paid circulation newspaper is you can believe their circulation figures. For their count will be verified by the U. S. Postal Service if any of the issues are sent through the mails—and many are also checked by one of several national auditing firms.

Regular subscribers also help keep newspapers honest—a free throw shopping guide delivery person may miss a block or two, or an entire section of the city, and who's to know or complain. But let a paying subscriber miss his newspaper, or even have it arrive late, wet or torn, and he usually lets someone know about it in no uncertain terms.

But the main argument is the newspaper is a welcome guest into the home. The family buys it and thus a certain value is attached, often to the extent that in many homes there is some reluctance to dispose of it until everyone in the family gets a chance to read it.

Some issues are kept for days, weeks, and even years. What about your advertising?

If you were distributing your own handbills, the shopper might be a less expensive alternative.

However, there's really no substitute for newspaper advertising, unless it would be going in person to see all prospects. But the newspaper can get your message to more potential customers, more often than you could—even if you knew who they might be.

Asthma attack might require doctor's aid

Asthma means a physical condition in which the sufferer has a very hard time breathing.

Asthma, says the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care, results from the narrowing of the airway bronchial tubes.

Often, but not always, an attack results from exposure to something to which the victim is allergic. Infections, colds, changes in the weather or emotional factors also can lead to an attack.

Symptoms of asthma are difficulty in breathing out, or exhaling; a wheezing or whistling sound as air is expelled; nervousness, tenseness and fright; coughing; heavy perspiring; nausea and vomiting; bluish tinge to the skin due to lack of oxygen; victim finds it's easier to breathe sitting upright; choking sensation.

If it is the first episode of suspected but undiagnosed asthma, seek medical attention.

If a doctor cannot be reached, take the victim to the nearest hospital. Comfort and reassure the victim, particularly a child who may be frightened by the experience, since emotional stress may make the condition worse. Keep the victim sitting upright.

If attacks have occurred before, give the victim the prescribed medications according to his doctor's instructions.

Do not give the victim anything else without physician's advice. Report the attack to the physician, even if the victim seems better after a day.

Some asthma symptoms demand immediate medical attention.

This happens if the medication fails to improve breathing; if breathing can barely be heard; inability to cough; increased bluish tinge to skin; pulse rate more than 120 beats per minute; increased anxiety; victim tries to pull up shoulders and chin to get air.

These symptoms mean the victim is near collapse from respiratory failure, and needs help at once from the doctor or nearest hospital emergency room.

AMA offers first aid tips for burns

Doctors classify burns by degree. In first degree burns the outside layer of skin is affected. Most sunburn is first degree.

If layers of skin beneath the surface are involved, the burn is called second degree. If all layers of skin are destroyed, it means the burn is third degree.

Whatever the degree, the burn is one of the most painful injuries suffered in day to day activities around home or work place.

Treat first degree burns with cold water or cold compresses to ease the pain, and cover with a clean bandage. Do not apply butter or grease, and do not use other medications or home remedies without a doctor's recommendations.

Second degree burns also may be eased with cold water or cold compresses (not iced). Cover with dry sterile bandage or clean cloth. Elevate burned arms or legs.

Do not attempt to break blisters. Do not apply ointments, sprays, antiseptics or home remedies. Seek medical attention promptly.

In third degree burns the burned area appears white or charred.

Do not remove clothes that are stuck to the burn. Do not put ice or water on the burns. Avoid the ointments and sprays.

Check to make certain the victim can breathe. Place cold cloth or cool water (not iced) on burns of the face, hands or feet to cool the areas.

The American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care urges that you call for an ambulance immediately in third degree burns.

Prompt medical attention is imperative. If the victim is having trouble breathing, elevate head and shoulders slightly.

If medical attention is more than two hours away, give the victim water or a weak solution of salt (one level teaspoon) and baking soda (one-half level teaspoon) mixed with one quart of cool water.

Give an adult half a glass, less for a child. Have the victim sip slowly, and repeat every 15 minutes. Clear juices, such as apple juice, may be given.

Do not give fluids if victim is unconscious or is vomiting.

For chemical burns, a rapid flushing with water of the burned area is important.

Let the water run over the burned area at least five minutes. Use a garden hose, shower or tub. Do not use a strong stream of water.

Read the instructions for first aid on the label of the chemical bottle or package and follow them. Seek prompt medical attention.

NEWS FROM THE GOVERNOR

Drug addiction, a problem often associated with young people, also is a major problem for many of Mississippi's elderly citizens, according to the Mississippi Council on Aging, a division of the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs.

"Because older people generally use more medications than younger people, they are exposed to problems caused by drug interaction, overdoses and other pitfalls that can result from extensive drug use," said Jay C. Moon, Council on Aging executive director.

Moon advises older Mississippians to write down all medical problems before visiting a physician. Also, prior to the visit, "make a list or have someone make a list of all medicines being taken," he said. "Or, put all medicines you're taking in a sack or other container, and take them with you. Be sure to include all medications. Don't forget the more common ones such as aspirin and laxatives."

"Individuals should be particularly aware of possible drug interaction problems when they are being treated by more than one physician," Moon said. "It's extremely important that each physician knows what medications are being prescribed by others."

Moon emphasized that "once you have seen the physician, don't leave until you are sure whether you should continue taking the medications you have been taking."

"If the physician prescribes new medications, determine the name of the new drug, why you're to take it and what it is for, how often it should be taken, how long you should take it, will there be any side effects, and, if so, what are they and is there anything special you should know about taking this drug?"

For example, should you take it with meals, should you drive while taking this drug and are there other drugs you should not take with this drug?

"Write down all the answers to the questions and information on the drugs as soon as possible," he said. "It's preferable that you do this while you are in the examination room, but, if this is not possible, take time to sit down in the waiting room and make some notes."

Moon also advised that elderly citizens feel free to ask a pharmacist any questions about the drugs. "Be sure to show your pharmacist your list of drugs that you already are taking," he said, "so the pharmacist can check for possible undesirable effects of taking some drugs with other drugs."

"The pharmacist may be able to substitute generic drugs for name brands. Ask your physician about this to see if his prescription can be handled this way. It could save you a lot of money."

Moon noted that "without some system or method, the times of taking different medications may become confusing or forgotten. This can result in your taking the same medication too many times, not enough or not at all. This becomes a particular problem when you are taking several drugs."

"One method is the medication chart. This approach is merely a listing of all the medications you take with the important information about each drug," he said. "One column could be used for the name of the drug and what it's for, the next column for the color/shape, another column for directions and cautions and finally a column for times."

"Another method is the weekly medication check-off chart. This chart," Moon said, "shows a weekly schedule for taking each medication. The times for each medication to be taken are written into each block under the appropriate day. When a dose of medication is taken, the time is crossed out."

A good feature of this method is that, if your mark out the time as soon as you take the medication, you are secure in the knowledge that you have or have not taken the medication."

A third method uses either the chart from method one or two or both. Apply color to the chart for a given drug, and then color the top of the drug container with the same color.

Still another method is the daily or weekly container approach. Individuals taking only a few pills per day or week may want to begin placing all the pills for that day or week in a container. "Then, you can always look in the container and tell how many pills are left," Moon said. "You can determine if you already have taken your medication."

This method works well when the individual is taking only one medicine or when "the medications are easily distinguishable from each other by color or by shape."

Moon offered six "don'ts" for medication users: Don't take any more or less than the prescribed amount, don't stop taking a drug suddenly without checking with the physician, don't mix alcohol and medication unless the physician indicates that this is permissible, don't take drugs prescribed for someone else or give your prescribed drugs to another person, don't transfer a drug from its original container to another and don't keep old or expired medicines.

He also offered six medication "dos": Tell the physicians about all the medicines you are taking and about any allergies or sensitivities you might have, be sure you understand all instructions before starting to use a drug, be sure you take medicines when you're supposed to, call your physician if you notice any new symptoms or side effects, keep drugs in airtight containers and store them properly and keep a permanent record of all drugs and vaccines to which you're allergic or sensitive.

SEEKING IMPROVEMENTS IN EDUCATION

Through the years a number of studies have recommended that Mississippi establish a state lay board of education.

Starting in 1962, a state legislative study committee recommended that "there should be a state agency for education, comprised of a lay board and a professional staff responsible to the Legislature and to the people..."

Four years later, a management consulting firm, in a statewide study of education in Mississippi, recommended that "top priority be given to amending the Mississippi State Constitution to authorize the establishment of a nine-member state board of education..."

In 1972, a special education committee appointed by the Governor listed as top priority in education organization the need for an expanded, lay board of education.

And two years ago, in 1980, another special committee—one appointed by the Governor and the Legislature—listed the creation of an expanded, lay state board of education as one of the priority needs of education in Mississippi.

On November 2, Mississippi voters will take this issue up. Already, a number of business, education, and civic organizations have endorsed this proposed lay state board of education. The Mississippi Economic Council recommends that voters consider this very important issue and join the growing number of Mississippians who are working for improvements in education.

Library featuring owl display

By JOE PILET
Coordinator

Friends of the Library

A collection of owls that don't give a hoot are now on display at the City-County Public Library, placed by Diana Knight, employee at Coast Electric who fancies these rare birds.

Ms. Knight's largest owl stands 14 inches high and her smallest is a mere 2½ inches in height.

Possibly her most unusual one is made entirely of small sea shells; the most elegant are a pair of bone china made in England, with a white alabaster from Italy coming in second.

Those who have made a study of owlology tell us there are 525 species of owls that have been identified by scientists.

Owls are associated as symbols of wisdom and ancient Greeks believed the owl to be sacred to the Goddess of Wisdom, Athena.

Actually they aren't all that smart since geese, crows, and ravens have a much higher I.Q.

But the birds are important and serve as night-watchmen in our gardens, swooping down at night to eat harmful rodents.

Those aren't really horns on the heads of the great horned owl—they are tufts of feathers, and like most other owls it is heard more often than it is seen which gives cause for wonder how much the philosopher knew about owls when he wrote: "The less he spoke the more he heard, why couldn't we be like that wise old bird."

How did owls get the reputation of being so wise?

County Agent's Notes

by John Smith

HARVEST FOR QUALITY

Prospects for top yields are good this year on most Hancock County farms. The weather generally has cooperated and growing conditions have been favorable most of the summer.

But the normal enthusiasm is lacking on many farms as producers get into harvest. Even with better-than-average production, chances for profits are dim because of low crop prices.

These low prices may tempt farmers to take shortcuts in harvesting and storing crops. With practically no chances of economic reward, it's easy to see why farmers may not want to make the extra efforts needed to ensure high crop quality.

But the fact that crop prices are so low is the very reason farmers shouldn't shortcut quality. Simply, they need to squeeze every dollar possible from the crops in the field. Economic survival demands it.

Working at delivering a high quality product may help the enthusiasm flow a little easier and it could be the deciding factor in convincing lenders to take a risk one more year, even if current crop prices are not profitable.

Pride also is a factor in taking the extra steps to do the job right. Regardless of how hard the economy smacks them, farmers have always taken great pride in their ability to produce the best crops in the world. That's why we are the best fed and clothed nation on earth.

THE FINAL TEST

The ultimate test of any crop variety is yield. If some crop varieties did not yield as expected this fall, make a note and see if you can why.

Compare your yields with the research tests. Poor performance on your farm could signal disease problems. Or it could be a matter of low soil fertility or improper soil pH.

Firewood Cutting Boon or Bust?

Mississippi is 56 percent forested. The greatest portion of this forested land is privately owned. These many small woodlots have a great potential as sources of fuelwood.

Owners can improve their woodlots, while selling wood for profit, by removing crowded, crooked, and diseased or other inferior trees to make room for the best trees to grow vigorously.

Still another source of firewood could be the salvage of branches or unused slash following logging operations.

In many of our urban areas, wood is available from wood using industries that often have quantities of dimensional wood waste that they are paying to have carted away.

The thousands of cords consumed annually for firewood in Mississippi cannot escape having an impact on our forest resource. The big question must be posed as to how well firewood cutting practices are being carried out. Are we ruining our timber?

Are the best formed, most desirable oaks and hickories being removed for firewood, thereby seriously depleting the growing stock? ... Or are poorer formed, less desirable trees being utilized?

Harvesting firewood from the forest can either be of great benefit or detriment to forest conditions in the future.

For a forest managed for the eventual production of lumber and veneer, removal of undesirable species or poorly formed individuals from the pole size (5 to 10 inches diameter) stand will usually result in a growth and quality response from the remaining desirable trees.

Firewood demand provides a good market for the removal of these undesirables. However, many times these cutting practices are not followed. Often, the straightest, fastest growing, most desirable, species are cut without regard to their potential as crop trees.

In this way, firewood cutting can seriously deplete the growing stock in a managed stand.

The results of poor firewood cutting practices may be amplified by the increasing volume of firewood being demanded in the state. We need to guard against this.

Firewood cutting properly applied can provide the needed fuel and at the same time improve the quality and growth of Mississippi's great forest resource. Boon or bust ... it's up to us.

CROCKETT LINDSEY

JUDGE CIRCUIT COURT

As a Municipal Court Judge, Crockett Lindsey dared to change a system...and was successful. His get-it-done, make-it-happen approach brought accelerated justice to the courts, devised programs for prisoner reforms, and compensated victims for their loss.

THIS IS WHY CROCKETT LINDSEY SHOULD BE ELECTED:

A dedicated and innovative judge, Crockett Lindsey established the state's first Misdemeanor Probation Office; he instituted work programs for city prisoners and juvenile traffic offenders; he developed the first Citizen's Dispute Settlement Program in Southern Mississippi; and he implemented the area's first Misdemeanor Victim Restitution Program. His plan was so unique and effective that cities throughout Mississippi soon modeled programs of their own after it.

Crockett, is the son of the late English Lindsey, a Pass Christian native. He began his legal training at Ole Miss, where he received a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science. While in college, he married the former Sue Hughes and today is the father of two children, a son, Wade and daughter, Courtney. He received his Law Degree from Ole Miss, was admitted to the bar, and with confidence in his own ability began a private practice which has grown in stature and service.

He is a charter member of the Mississippi Municipal Judges Conference, an organization dedicated to the improvement of the state's judicial system. He served as the Conference's President and Vice President and was a member of its Board of Directors and Legislative Committees.

While President of the Municipal Judges Conference, Crockett drafted legislation which led to the improvement and modernization of the state's judicial system. His leadership also led to the adoption of uniform rules of procedure and uniform fines and penalties by Mississippi municipal courts which were hailed by state law makers and judges.

True to his dedication to the judiciary, Crockett attended advanced courses of study sponsored by the American Bar Association, the Mississippi Judicial College and the National Judicial College. He is a former Special Master (appointed judge) to the Harrison County Chancery Court and a member of the Harrison County Bar Association, the Mississippi State Bar Association and the Mississippi Trial Lawyers Association.

Man sentenced 15 years in sexual battery trial

By BRENT MACEY

A 65-year-old Kiln resident accused of sexual battery on a four-year-old girl was found guilty in Hancock Circuit Court Tuesday by a six-man, six-woman jury.

Leo Bennett was sentenced to 15 years in the Mississippi State Penitentiary at Parchman by Circuit Court Judge J. Rube Griffin.

Some six witnesses were called to testify during the trial, including the little girl allegedly molested, and her 14, 10, and 12-year-old brothers.

Although prosecuting attorney J.C. Johnson called the little girl to the stand, Griffin stopped all questioning as soon as the youth stated her name and age.

All the brothers testified they witnessed Bennett with their sister in his bedroom on July 8, 1982.

Defense attorney James Tucker said he expects to appeal the case.

He argued Bennett was indicted under the wrong statute and should have been charged with fondling—a lesser offense.

Bennett was found guilty under a statute established in 1980 which has not yet been tested, Griffin said. It defines an area between rape and fondling.

Tucker argued the law defines sexual battery as one committed on a victim who is physically helpless, or incapable of resisting or communicating unwillingness.

He claimed the four-year-old was capable of expressing herself.

Johnson argued the child had no idea of the man's intent and has no concept of a depraved act.

According to testimony by the child's mother, the family was working to clean up the Cow Patty Lounge on July 8, 1982.

The mother, who had agreed to manage the lounge which was partly owned by Bennett, was inside cleaning while her children were outside cleaning up the lawn and mowing grass, she said.

Bennett's house was located next door to the lounge and the family used the bathroom in Bennett's house while they were working at the lounge, she said.

She noted she has known Bennett for some 18 years.

The 12-year-old son testified he was helping clean up the front yard when he noticed his sister was missing.

He said he went into Bennett's house and spotted his sister in bed with Bennett.

He then went back outside and informed his older brother.

The youth and his younger 10-year-old brother then went back inside the house. The 14-year-old brother, who testified he did not believe his younger brother at first, later went to the window outside Bennett's bedroom. He testified he saw his sister and Bennett in bed.

After notifying their mother of the incident, the sheriff's department was called and the young girl was taken to Hancock General Hospital where she was examined by Dr. Charmaine McCleave.

McCleave testified during the trial that, "The findings were consistent with sexual abuse."

She stated the child had bite or sucking marks on the child's neck and shoulders. The child's genitals were also red.

Bennett testified he had nothing to do with any of the children.

He denied being drunk. He said he returned from the lounge to his bedroom and discovered the little girl and her brothers in his bed.

"I kicked them out," he said and testified he then went to sleep.

It's getting to be soup time, and you can make a meal around a steaming, savory bowl of soup, from beef to bean.

Hearty, filling soups are as much a part of the Irish cuisine as that good old Irish whiskey...and some of the best of the Irish soups, as is in the case in most other countries, really aren't made according to exact recipes at all, but are often the result of the cook's resourceful combining of odd and ends about the larder and refrigerator.

A favorite of mine, from an old family recipe, which I've been told, crossed the waters along with my ancestors when they left the Auld Sod for the New World, is made with that special star of Irish cooking—the Irish potato. Here's (with variations)

IRISH POTATO SOUP

2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 medium onions, thin-sliced
3 large potatoes, peeled
5 cups milk
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 bunch parsley, tied together
½ cup evaporated milk (or half and half)
Dash of mace
Bayleaf
Chopped chives or green onions for garnish
Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan, add the onions and potatoes, stirring them about, and softening them over low heat for several minutes—but don't let them brown, whatever you do, it will spoil the bland flavor you want for this dish.

Add the other ingredients, except for the canned milk and the chives or green onions, which you'll add at the very last minute. Simmer for a half hour or more, until the potatoes are soft. Discard the bayleaf and parsley, and strain the soup through a sieve or blend or mash well. Then reheat in another pan.

Toss a bit of the canned milk and chives into each bowl and pour the hot soup over, or trot out great-grandmother's soup tureen, pour in the soup and scatter the chives over. (Six servings.)

P.S. I had to change the recipe somewhat, as several times great-grandmother's recipe calls for a cup of "good cream fresh from the cow" on the old homestead, in the Emerald Isle...but the canned milk or half and half blends well, so there. Besides, where can you find that sort of cream these days?

Variation on the theme, added by my Cajun husband—add to the soup while cooking a chopped rib of celery and a chopped bell (green) pepper and a small hot pepper.

Amateur radio operators eyeing code-free license

A proposed amateur radio license without code is expected to draw comment from Gulf Coast radio amateurs at Amacom '82, the New Orleans hamfest-computerfest, Saturday and Sunday, at Delgado Community College's City Park campus.

Currently, all radio amateurs must know International Morse Code at a minimum of five words per minute.

Amacom is sponsored by Jefferson Amateur Radio Club. Admission will be free.

The Federal Communications Commission is asking for opinions on its proposals, which range from providing a code-free license for users of very high frequencies and higher to keeping present standards requiring 5-to-20 word-per-minute code skill for varying privileges, said Robert C. Bradley, an engineer with the FCC's New Orleans field office and a speaker scheduled at the FCC forum at 9 a.m. Sunday.

The issue may reappear at a meeting of the American Radio Relay League at 2 p.m. Sunday.

For the non-radio amateur interested in the hobby, a film, "World of Amateur Radio," will be shown at an "Introduction to Amateur Radio" program at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Radio amateurs wishing to upgrade their licenses will take FCC examinations at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Shortwave listeners are invited to a talk on "Commercial Shortwave Broadcasting," by Joseph M. Costello III of New Orleans, owner of WRNO-Worldwide, the nation's only commercial shortwave radio station, at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Computer forums, including one on "Sinclair Computer Construction Tips" and another for the Heath Users' Group, are scheduled for 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Sunday.

Color slow scan television (SSTV), a new development in the amateur radio hobby, will be explained and demonstrated by Sam Morino of Lindale, Tex., a developer of SSTV equipment.

Finding and eliminating radio noises coming from electrical power lines will be discussed at 1 p.m. Saturday by Donald Chaffin of New Orleans, a communications engineer with Louisiana Power & Light Co.

"Problems in Modern Communications Receivers," will be discussed by Robert Sherwood, head of a Denver, Colo., electronic engineering firm, who will explain how to improve shortwave receivers, at 10 a.m. Sunday.

How engineers design and test transmitter amplifiers will be explained by Jerry Pittenger, an engineer with Battelle Laboratories at Columbus, Ohio, at 1 p.m. Sunday.

An efficient way to arrange an amateur radio station for contacting rare stations around the world will be described by Eugene B. Tilton of New Orleans, president of the Delta DX Association, at 2 p.m. Saturday.

Design of the low voltage power supply, a basic unit of most electronic equipment, will be presented by Ronald L.

Amox, manager of Exxon Corp. communications in New Orleans, at 9 a.m. Sunday.

An emergency communications panel discussion by representatives of the Navy Military Affiliate Radio Service (MARS), Civil Defense and American Red Cross will be presented at 2 p.m. Saturday.

A flea market for radio operators and computer hobbyists trading their equipment and exhibitors with new equipment will be at Amacom both days.

Radio amateurs visiting the convention may use Jefferson Amateur Radio club's repeaters, W5GAD/R, on 147.285/385 MHz and 44.0/44.0 MHz, for directions and Amacom information.

More information may be obtained by calling W.D. "Bill" Bushnell, chairman, 504-887-5022.

Growing Child

P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Indiana 47902 (317) 423-2624

BABY'S CHANGING WORLD

We have all marvelled at how a magician can make objects seem to appear or disappear—in his hand, hat or pocket.

Our logic tells us that he is not really creating things out of thin air, or making them disappear without a trace, even though the visual illusion of such magic is overpowering.

A baby's logic is not so well-developed, and lives in a world of constantly changing sights and sounds. The baby tries to make some sense out of the world, to recognize stability and order when seen and to discover rules for explaining the strange events that do not fit in with fragile new ideas.

Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, reports that a baby learns that if something is moving, it is likely to keep on moving unless something else makes it stop. So if a toy falls or rolls behind an obstruction, a baby may not find it at just the place where it disappeared. Baby will learn that an object looks different from different viewing angles, but its true nature hasn't really changed.

This concept is called "object constancy" and learning it takes time and experience. It is one of several stages of mental development that increase in complexity throughout baby's preschool and early school years.

At 8 months old, a baby is still working on simple ideas, like recognizing familiar objects and deciding whether new objects fit in with present conceptions. The child tends to accept changes in appearance at face value, without holding out many long-range expectations. "Logic" tells baby that things change unless they can be proven to be the same.

A proving process probably has to happen for every object that baby encounters in early months. It happens first for those objects seen most often, or are most important, like the faces of parents. Baby sees these faces at different angles, in light and shadow, and with all kinds of expressions on them.

But there tend to be certain sounds and behaviors that always go with them to confirm that they are the same. Baby learns to identify what parts stay the same to aid recognition and what changes occur but are unimportant (at least for recognition).

When baby finds a new object like a block, it is turned at different angles and seen at different distances. At each moment it appears different to the eyes. But the feel, sound and other qualities stay the same.

He learns that if he moves or the object moves, it may look different but the difference is not important. Or that the object may look different in light and in shadow, but that difference is not important either.

Finally (and this takes a little longer) if the object is partly hidden, it will look different, but that does not mean that it has disappeared, or changed into something else.

All of these learnings help a baby come to grips with the world. Baby begins to sort things out. He forms stable ideas and expectations. His picture of concrete reality is developing steadily, and in not too many months he will be ready to take a giant step forward in gaining control over environment—using words to label the objects and experiences he so silently contemplates today.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information on the social and physical development of children from birth to six years old, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, IN 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing. A year's subscription to the newsletter costs $11.95.

Library Friends take European photo tour

By JOE PILET
Coordinator

Friends of The Library Bob Hubbard's European slide-lecture program at the City-County Library in Bay St. Louis Thursday included showing of stained glass windows, cathedral spires, statuary, flowering window boxes, river scenes, houseboats, London's famous tower, markets and meadows, ornate bridges.

His work is a true cross-section of scenes around England, Germany, Vienna that caught the fancy of a professional photographer.

This was not of the dry Stoddard's Lecture serving, but rather scenes interspersed with comments and observations and witty remarks.

The audience responded with ah's, oh's and occasional questions. Time ran out long before all slides were flashed on the screen, but members have been promised a return engagement at a time to be announced later.

During the social period that followed two charming young tea girls, —Karen Chevis, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Chevis, and Wendy de Ben, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred de Ben, assisted the groups official hostess, Mrs. John McKenna, at the punch table.

Members and their guests enjoyed a showing of antique clocks, and comparing clock prices of now and then by using a 1902 Sears and Roebuck catalog furnished by John Eble.

Oil paintings by local artist Jean Van Peski were also displayed.

Warren Carver, treasurer for the group, was kept busy as new members signed up and others paid dues. Three new life memberships were added.

The coordinator expressed appreciation of the excellent news coverage given the organization by The Sea Coast Echo.

Scrapbooks of newspaper clippings on library events from several years were displayed.

Friends of the Library holds open meetings at 7:30 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month. These meetings are open to all interested persons free of charge. The November meeting will feature vocal and instrumental music.

Brandt will speak to students, faculty, staff and the interested public at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 15, in Bishop Hall Auditorium. His topic, "Starting From Scratch," will trace his career from Ole Miss, where he earned a mathematics degree and played on the tennis team, to his various roles in the petroleum industry. The Otho Smith Fellows Program is sponsored by the Ole Miss School of Business Administration and funded by the Phil B. Hardin Foundation of Meridian. The lecture series honors Smith, a retired Meridian businessman and former president of the Ole Miss Alumni Association.

JUSTICE TO SPEAK

Justice Harry Blackmun of the United States Supreme Court will visit The University of Mississippi Friday, Oct. 22, to deliver the third annual James McClure Memorial Lecture in Law in Fulton Chapel. The public is invited to attend Justice Blackmun's 10:30 a.m. address titled "A Glimpse or Two Inside the Court." He will be introduced by Dr. Parham Williams, dean of the Ole Miss Law School. Hunter-Jumper Show set Saturday at Fairgrounds

A Gulf Coast Hunter-Jumper Schooling Show will be conducted this Saturday at the Hancock County Fairgrounds on Longfellow Road in Hancock County.

Lavonne Marble, show organizer, noted local riders as well as riders from Baton Rouge, Jackson, Miss. and Florida are expected to compete in the English riding event.

"The show will run all day and have events ranging from walk-trot for beginners, hunter classes to the popular and exciting jumper classes," she said.

Marble noted the show is preparation for a larger event scheduled at the Fairgrounds Nov. 20.

That show also will also be a Hunter-Jumper show but it will be recognized by the Mississippi Hunter-Jumper Association.

She noted that show "will be on a much grander scale."

The Saturday show is free for spectators. Concessions will be served all day.

For more information call Lavonne Marble or Chickie Marble at 467-4284 after 5 p.m.

Bay High Coach says:

Mental attitude a key to Tiger, Hornet match

By BRENT MACEY
Bay High Tiger Head Coach Snuffy Smith noted the Tigers will have to forget last week's defeat against Long Beach if his team is going to beat East Central on Hornet territory this weekend and continue its winning season.

"We're going to have to get our heads right and get up for the game. If we can do that then I think we can win," he said.

The Tigers, 4-1 in conference play and tied for first place in the Deep South Conference, should be considered the favorite since the Hornets have a 2-3 season.

But the Tigers are not taking East Central lightly.

East Central this year has had its ups and downs, defeating a strong Hancock North Central team earlier this season and then losing to Pass Christian last weekend to give the Pirates their first victory of the season.

Smith noted, "They (East

Central) have an excellent running back who is fast, very agile and strong."

"We're going to have to key up to stop him," Smith said.

The Tigers, who have sustained no major injuries this season, will be playing their normal game and "taking the ball to them," Smith noted.

He said the Hornets also rely on a running game but "they're a well balanced ball club and they can go to the air," he said.

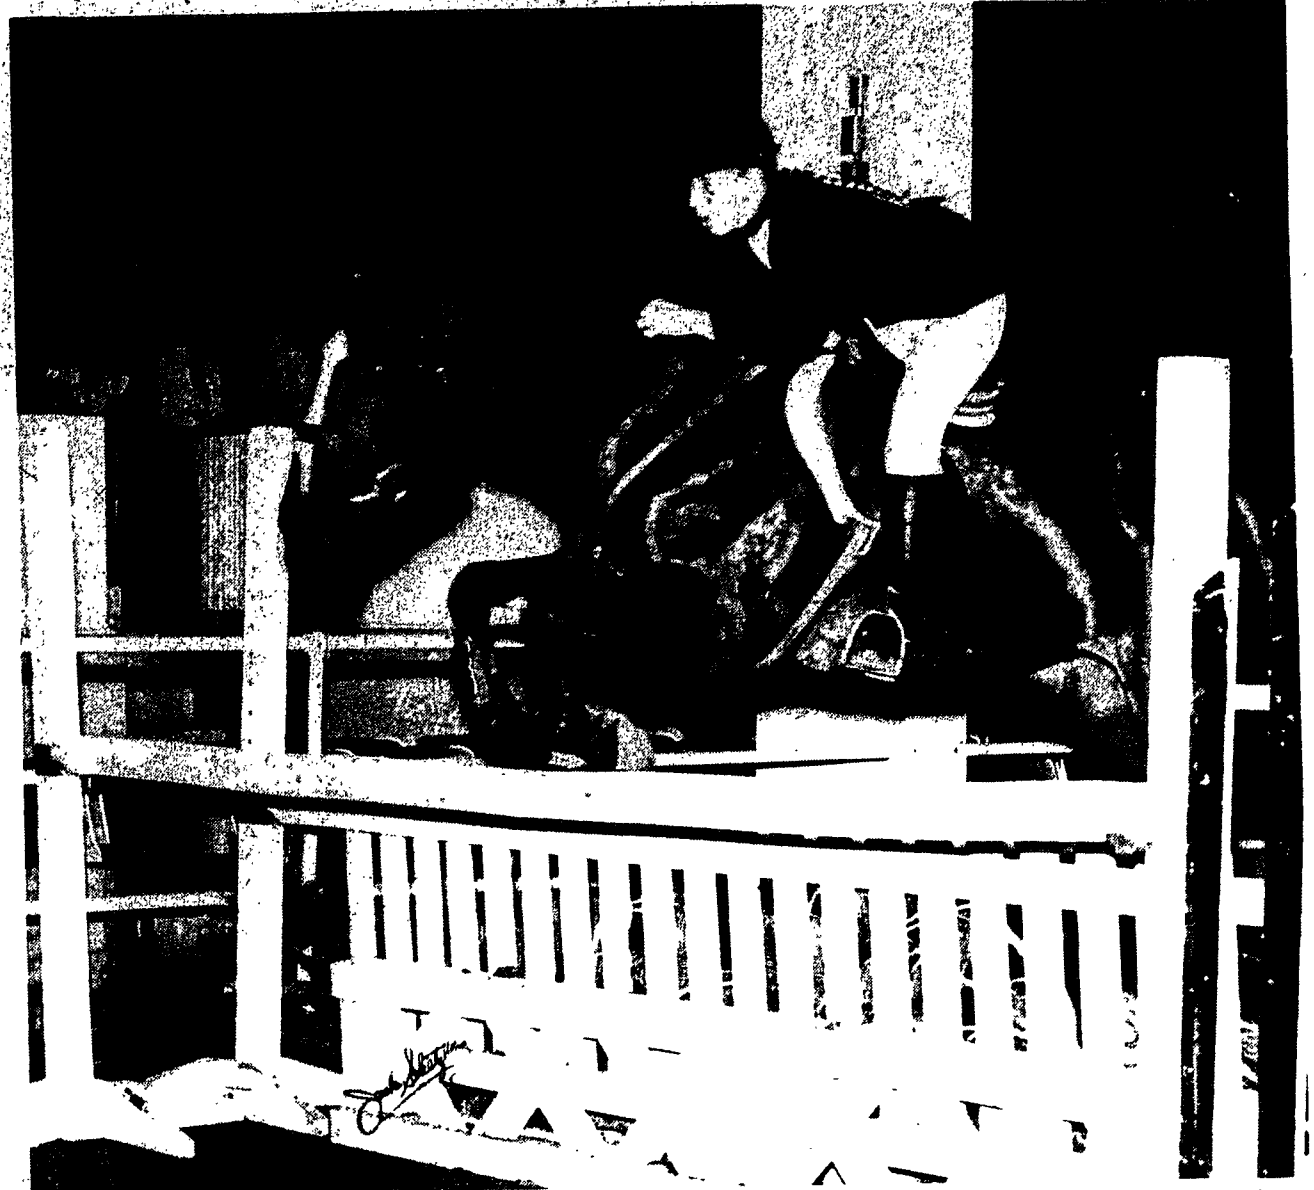

Guerrero takes 2nd ring victory

Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club's Tony Guerrero scored his second victory of the season last weekend in Pascagoula.

Guerrero, 11, fighting in the 76 pound junior division, won a unanimous decision over Tiger Stokes of the Crisis Center Boxing Club in Ocean Springs.

B-K-W teammate Cory Johnson was less successful, losing to Clint (the mule) Webster of Biloxi in three rounds.

The B-K-W Club will travel to Kenner, La. this weekend to compete in a Silver Gloves Tournament.

HORSE SHOW SCHEDULED—Lavonne Marble competes in a Hunter-Jumper Horse Show in Denver similar to one scheduled at the Hancock County Fairgrounds this Saturday beginning at 8 a.m. Marble's horse, above, was raised by Hancock resident Pete Moran.

Rocks paired with high ranked Tomcats

By RANDY PONDER
Still seeking that elusive first win of the year, St. Stanislaus travels to Wiggins Friday night to face the state-ranked Stone County Tomcats in a Deep South Conference football game.

lead at any time this year and have had a problem scoring. St. Stanislaus has put only 41 points on the boards all season while the opposition has pushed across 157.

The Rocks average 7 points per game and their opponents average 26.

The Deep South Conference contest is set to kick off at 7:30 p.m. Friday night at Perk Stadium in Wiggins. It will be Stone's homecoming game.

Second dove season to open

This upcoming weekend will be another exciting one for state hunters. Another squirrel season opens, and dove hunting will begin anew.

Come one-half hour before sunrise on Saturday, Oct. 16, squirrel hunters will find it legal to hunt their quarry in Zone II, an area defined by the Department of Wildlife Conservation as lying south of U.S. Highway 82 and north of U.S. Highway 84. The season here will continue through Jan. 16.

Virtually every hunter knows that he or she must have a valid hunting license, signed and on their person, before entering the woods. Conservation enforcement authorities say that shotguns need not be plugged for squirrel hunting.

The bag limit on squirrels is eight and the possession limit is 16.

The Oct. 16 weekend will also see a resurgence of dove shooting as the second seasons begins. It will continue through Nov. 7.

Shooting hours for doves, one of the state's most popular migratory birds, are one-half hour before sunrise until sunset. The season is open statewide.

However, there is one difference between dove and squirrel hunting. Dove hunters must have their shotguns plugged and incapable of holding more than three shells. Like squirrel hunters, they too must have a valid state hunting license.

Bay Area Soccer Club slates coaching clinic

Bay Area Soccer Club tonight is conducting a two hour coaching clinic at the Lutheran Church of the Pines on US-90 opposite Choctaw Plaza.

The clinic will begin at 7:30 p.m. and will include basic tactics.

All new coaches are especially invited to attend, as well as anyone else who may be interested.

Also the U-12 Division has been expanded to six teams, so there is still room for more players. All youth who wish to play soccer and who have not yet registered should contact Stan Weidman, 467-5709. The U-12 Division includes all boys whose birth year is 1971 or 1972.

The next BASC Board meeting will be on Thursday, Oct. 21 at the Lutheran Church of the Pines.

Church, Henry take honors in PRJC, East Central game

Pearl River College overcame the rain, mud and an early seven point deficit to hand East Central a 10-7 South Division loss Saturday night.

The win spoiled the Warriors Homecoming and pushed the Wildcats into a first place tie with Gulf Coast in the South Division race. Pearl River, 3-0 in the division and 5-1 overall, will meet the undefeated Gulf Coast Bulldogs this coming Saturday in Biloxi.

East Central, the team which handed the Wildcats their only South Division defeat in the final 40 seconds of last year's meeting, jumped out to a 7-0 advantage early in the first quarter.

With the ball resting on East Central's nine-yard line and faced with a third-down-and-10 situation, Warrior quarterback, Stacy Powell, hit David Gallaspi with a 91-yard scoring toss.

The Warrior receiver was aided on the play when two PRC defenders collided and fell to the ground. Luke Park added the extra point and with 10:10 remaining in the first quarter East Central was clinging to a 7-0 lead.

In the rain, PRC closed the margin to 7-3 in the opening minutes of the second stanza when kicker Tony Smith booted a 32-yard field goal capping a nine-play, 84-yard drive by the Wildcats.

PRJC's Kevin Russell set up what proved to be the winning drive by blocking an East Central punt to give the Wildcats possession at the Warriors' 33-yard line.

Nine plays later, Lloyd Henry capped the drive on a fourth down play from the 1.

Smith added the extra point and PRC led by a score of 10-7.

Both teams had several opportunities to put additional points on the board, but 15 fumbles and four interceptions between the two teams wiped out most of the threats.

Pearl River, still undefeated in the South Division, fumbled seven times, while the Warriors coughed up the ball an additional eight times. The Wildcats wound up losing four of their fumbles, while East Central lost possession on three occasions.

In addition to the three fumbles, East Central was also victimized by three pass interceptions, including an interception by PRC's Ben Robertson at the Wildcat 5-yard line with only 5 seconds remaining in the game.

Pearl River, now 5-1 overall for the season, finished the game with 244 yards in total offense, 215 of those yards came on the ground as Henry pounded out 105 yards on 16 carries and fullback Scott Senner added 79 tough yards on 21 attempts.

Fails was named the offensive lineman of the week for his performance against East Central and Henry, who rushed for 105 yards, was named offensive back of the week.

Ben Robertson, East Marion, was named defensive back and Joe Church, St. Stanislaus, was the defensive lineman player of the week. Kevin Russell of East Marion was the special teams player of last week.

Gametime is 7:30 p.m. in the Biloxi High School Stadium.

PRC v GCJC

Pearl River College and Gulf Coast Junior College, long time arch-rivals, will battle it out for first place in the tough South Division and for a top ten national ranking Saturday in Biloxi.

The PRC Wildcats, defending South Division champs, have put together a perfect 3-0 division ledger and a 5-1 overall mark. Gulf Coast, on the other hand, is undefeated (6-0) and also owns an unblemished 3-0 mark in the South.

Gulf Coast was ranked seventh and tenth in national polls last week before they upended East Mississippi 21-0. The Wildcats were on the verge of breaking into the top 20 in the same two polls. This past weekend, the Cats defeated East Central 10-7 in a downpour at Decatur.

"It will surely be a spectators' game," said J.C. Arban, the Wildcats' head coach, who led his team to a 14-10 homecoming win last year over the Bulldogs.

The Bulldogs are a very strong club, especially on defense," Arban said. "They have size, speed and strength." The Bulldogs, under head coach George Sekul, have given up only 28

Bulldogs bracing for Hurricane

It's gale-force season and Mississippi State's football squad is walking right into the teeth of an awaiting Hurricane from the University of Miami Saturday at 3 p.m. in the historic Orange Bowl.

Two years ago, this was the site of the great turnaround of 1980 when the Bulldogs, a heavy underdog to the nation's then-17th-rated team, upended the Hurricanes 34-31 in a scoring spree.

Last fall Miami came to MSU's Scott Field with the nation's eighth-place spot in one Top 10 poll and was edged 14-10 by State.

Obviously, revenge is on the minds of Coach Howard Schnellenberger's crew, which came within 15 seconds of upsetting Notre Dame last week in South Bend before the Fighting Irish managed a field goal and a 16-14 win.

Miami already owns impressive wins over such stalwarts as Southwest Conference power Houston 31-12, Michigan State 25-22, and Virginia Tech 14-8 at Blacksburg, Va.

State's contingent knows that the Bulldogs will have to snap a three-game losing streak the hard way as both clubs will be on the verge of an emotional "high" in seeking to return to the win column.

Coach Emory Bellard's Bulldogs dropped a 20-14 heartbreaker to Southern Mississippi on regional television (ABC) last weekend before 53,236 fans in Jackson, and the Bulldogs are in need of a few breaks.

The week before State was marching toward possible winning points in a 29-22 loss to fourth-ranked Georgia here before the oval popped loose and Georgia recovered at the MSU 18-yard stripe.

Then against the Golden Eagles the Bulldogs had a last-minute comeback thwarted when the Eagles held on downs at their own 32-yard marker in the last 1:30 of that intrastate melee.

No one can accuse MSU of lacking offensive punch, though, as the Bulldogs have been averaging 444.8 yards per game in total offense and are far ahead of the season record for total offense (4,189 yards in 1980) pace.

Pirates jell starting positions for Friday game in Carriere

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Head Football Coach Bob Lumpkin of the Pass Christian High School Pirates Wednesday said he plans to use the same team starters Friday night against Pearl River Central High School as last week. The game will be in Blue Devil Stadium in Carriere beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The Pirates earned their first victory of the 1982 season last Friday against the East Central High School Hornets. Pass Christian's victory resulted from Lumpkin changing offensive play strategy and shifting player positions during the last few games. "We will use the same people as starters Friday, but we'll be utilizing 20 players frequently instead of 15," Lumpkin stated.

The head coach said Pearl River has a 3-3 season record and will challenge the Pirates in what promises to be a tough ball game.

He noted the Blue Devils this season defeated Bay Senior, St. Stanislaus and Pearl River Louisiana High Schools.

Lumpkin reported Pearl River has a multiple play offensive strategy. He said the Pirates have no injured players and all team members will participate Friday.

DIRECTIONS

Pirate fans can reach the game by taking US-90 West along US-90 to the Hwy. 603 intersection in Waveland, turn north, travel to the Hwy. 43 intersection in Kiln, take that highway west to Picayune, turn north on Hwy. 11 in that city and travel five miles north of Picayune where Blue Devil Stadium can be seen on the left side of the highway.

VEERING—Running with the football in a Friday night game in Wade between the Pass Christian High School Pirates and the East Central High School Hornets is Pass Quarterback Jamie Jenkins as he is assisted by Fullback Al McKay, No. 20; Tight End Alan Dedeaux, No. 48; and Tackle Scottie Cuevas, No. 65. their homecoming contest. The Pirates will play the Pearl River Central High School Blue Devils in Carriere Friday night. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Channel 7 to carry Hawk basketball schedule

TBS Sports will televise 41 Atlanta Hawks basketball games during the fall and winter on WTBS in the 1982-83 National Basketball Association season.

The telecast schedule begins Friday, Oct. 22, with an 8:05 p.m. delayed broadcast of a Hawks' preseason clash with the New Jersey Nets, played in Washington.

The regular season telecast slate begins one week later as the Hawks take on the Detroit Pistons on Friday, Oct. 29, at 7:05 p.m., live from the Silverdome in Pontiac, Michigan.

All regular season Hawks telecasts are scheduled to be live, with all but two broadcasts slated to tip-off in prime-time.

WTBS is carried on Hancock Community Cable's Channel 7.

The broadcast team consists of veteran sportscaster Skip Caray, returning for his 16th season as the "Voice of the Hawks," and John Sterling.

Caray, one of the most popular and respected announcers in the business, is a five-time winner of the Georgia Sportscaster of the Year Award.

Sterling, whose sportscasting credits include having been a TV/radio announcer of New York Knicks, New Jersey Nets and Washington Bullets games, broadcast Hawks games on radio last season in Atlanta.

TBS Sports will televise 26 road games, 14 home contests from The Omni and one preseason match to comprise the 41-game television schedule.

Hawks TV games on WTBS include five battles against the Julius Erving-led Philadelphia 76ers, four contests versus the Boston Celtics and Larry Bird, and two games against the defending world champion Los Angeles Lakers, featuring Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and "Magic" Johnson.

Entering their second season under Head Coach Kevin Loughery, the healthy Hawks feature a veteran lineup and several new players. The preseason acquisition of former University of Georgia All-America forward Dominique Wilkins, and the drafting of first round selection Keith Edmonson, are expected to aid the Hawks in their quest for the division title.

Wilkins was the NBA's No. 3 draft pick by Utah this year before being obtained by Atlanta, while Edmonson, a 6-foot-5 guard from Purdue University, was an outstanding long-range shooter in college.

These first-season NBA players join a Hawks' lineup which includes stellar veterans Dan Roundfield, Eddie Johnson and Tree Rollins.

Forward Roundfield, who made the NBA All-Star Team for the third consecutive season last year, is coming off his best season statistically in both scoring and rebounding. Eddie Johnson, a two-time NBA All-Star, is an outstanding play-maker guard, while center "Tree" Rollins finished as the league's No. 2 shot blocker last year.

Other key players for the 1982-83 Hawks include Tom McMillen, Steve Hawes, Wes Matthews, and Rudy Macklin.

Have you ever wanted to know the secret recipes of the fish restaurants? Seems they always manage to turn out hot, crusty, delicious chunks of fish, not at all like what you can make at home.

Although the professional chefs won't divulge their secrets, Mercury Outboards' fishing department has learned some of the tricks of the trade and is willing to pass along their knowledge.

The main thing is to immerse the fish in a deep pan of clean, hot vegetable oil or lard. The temperature of the grease must be constant at 375 degrees Fahrenheit, so a thermometer capable of reading that high is needed. You can improvise using a small cube of bread. Drop it into the hot oil and if it instantly foams, the temperature is close enough to proceed.

Don't put too many pieces into the fryer at one time. Doing this cools the oil and doesn't give the fish that quick-cooked flavor you want. Cook the chunks for four minutes, then remove them to drain on a rack or paper towels.

Following is a recipe for a dry coating mix that works well with deep-fried fish. Dip the fish into heavy cream, or in melted ice-milk, a form of ice cream available at groceries.

Seasoned Coating Mix
2 cups fine, dry bread crumbs.
1/2 cup flour. 1/4 teaspoon thyme.
1/4 teaspoon powdered cloves. 4 teaspoons salt. 1 teaspoon pepper. 2 teaspoons paprika. This makes enough mix for three pounds of fish.

Fisheries society survey shows agencies underfunded

State fisheries agencies are at least $134 million underfunded this year, forcing them to operate at two-thirds the level recommended by professional resource managers, according to the American Fisheries Society.

The Society's survey, which included all of the 50 states, showed the funding shortages are due to inflation and cutbacks in federal programs.

Mississippi's agencies responsible for fisheries management urgently need $958,000 additional dollars to fund programs that are expected by the public and recommended by professional staff, the survey shows.

Specific program needs of Mississippi's fisheries agency and fisheries agencies nationwide:

	Nationwide ($ Millions)	Marine	Mississippi ($)	Freshwater
Research and Surveys	22.8	117,700	75,000	75,000
Land Acquisition	16.1	42,000	25,000	25,000
Construction and Development	52.3	187,000	75,000	75,000
Maintenance	14.7	92,000	150,000	150,000
Management	26.8	28,500	170,000	170,000
Coordination	1.3	—	25,000	25,000

"The victims of prolonged underfunding of state natural resource agencies include anglers, hunters, boaters and all Americans who advocate responsible resource stewardship," said Jay D. Hair, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation.

Hair noted that the American Fisheries Society survey showed that in the Gulf of Mexico area, for example, critical research on salt water fish in some states has been put on hold.

In the Northeast, anadromous fish programs are in jeopardy, and funds to address the severe acid rain problem are lacking. Hiring freezes and staff cutbacks are affecting many states.

Congress has an opportunity to address the problem of acute funding shortages for fisheries programs, Hair said, by expanding the Angler-

Johnson program, nearly $370 million has been collected over 30 years from taxes on selected fishing equipment and redistributed to the states to support fisheries needs.

Legislation in Congress would expand the Dingell-Johnson tax to include such other equipment as fish locators, hooks, line, fishing boats and motors. In effect, fishing enthusiasts would help increase funding for fisheries programs.

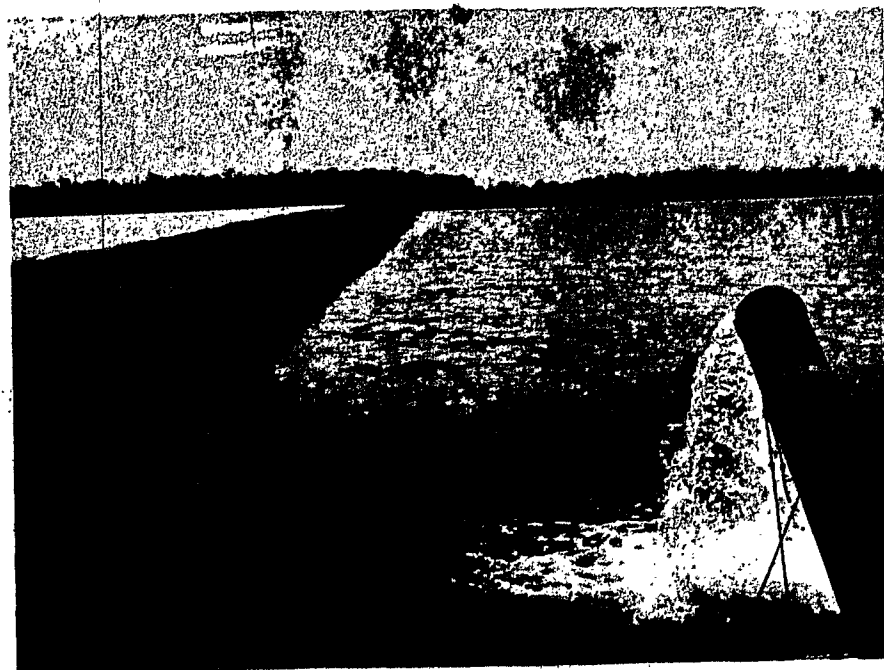

Total Dingell-Johnson funds raised during the last year were nearly $30 million, and pending legislation before Congress, expansion of the program is expected to at least double or triple that amount.

Expanded Dingell-Johnson program is estimated to at least triple Mississippi's current apportionment of $416,296.

"Anglers, recreationists, professionals and conservation organizations — including the National Wildlife Federation — support the expansion of the Dingell-Johnson program," said Hair, adding that without the expansion, the resource casualties will mount.

According to the Society's survey, funding shortfalls in the states increased by 15 percent between 1981-1982.

supported federal excise tax program on fishing equipment. Under the so-called Dingell-

GROWING IMPORTANCE—Mississippi now has 55,900 acres of catfish ponds, such as the one pictured here near Inverness. In fact, Mississippi is the leading producer of farm-raised catfish in the nation. Mississippians consume only about one pound of catfish per person per year. "Since it takes only 15 square feet of surface water per person to meet our in-state needs, catfish have become an important export crop and ponds an important land use," said Dr. Bob Chapin, Land Use Center Coordinator for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Alcorn '82 homecoming activities open Monday

Alcorn State University's annual Homecoming festivities have been scheduled for Oct. 17-23.

"Soaring Through the 80's with Unity and Higher Goals" is this year's theme.

The activities for students begin one week prior to three of the major events; the Homecoming Parade, Coronation of Miss Alcorn and the annual football game.

This year, 29 bands have been extended invitations to participate in the parade, which begins at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 23.

The streets will be lined well in advance to watch the parade of beautiful floats, queens, sweethearts and decorated cars.

The crowning of Miss Alcorn, Venita Bowie, a senior chemistry/pre-med. major from Flint, Michigan, will highlight the Coronation Ball on Wednesday evening, Oct. 20.

Members of her court are Juanita McKenzie, freshman attendant from Columbia; Veleace Johnson, sophomore attendant from Canton; Kathleen Greene, junior attendant from Meridian; and Jackie Thompson, senior attendant from Clinton.

Thursday has been declared T-Shirt day and that evening a carnival festival will be held. On Friday, a pep rally, bonfire and funeral, to bury the opposing team, have been scheduled.

A pre-game alumni gathering will be held Saturday from 8 a.m. until noon in the Old Administration Building.

The annual homecoming football game between the ASU Braves and Southern University Jaguars will start at 1 p.m. The final activity will be a concert Saturday evening following the football game, which features the popular Grand Master Flash and Sh-Nuff.

State's 'roundballers' bounce into action

Even while the ovals of football continue to descend and ascend through the sky, Mississippi State's two "roundball" sports have an interesting week ahead of them.

On Thursday, Oct. 14, Head Coach Ron Polk will send his MSU baseball team out on public display free-of-charge at the annual Maroon-White fall intrasquad baseball contest at 7:30 p.m.

That's a rescheduled date for the contest, which had been previously slated for Thursday, Oct. 7. Rains (the first in almost four weeks of any consequence) forced the one-week postponement.

"We still encourage the fans of local baseball to come out and see the Maroon-White game," noted Coach Polk. "This will be our headline contest since we decided against playing a fall intercollegiate exhibition schedule."

A cast of 17 newcomers for the MSU baseball program joins 18 returning varsity players for the 1982-83 diamond activities as the Bulldogs hope to get their "blood" rejuvenated after appearing in four of five Southeastern Conference title playoffs from 1977-81.

Polk has been encouraged by the hustle and desire of the players, many of whom performed for the Bulldogs in the Harlem International Baseball Tournament at Harlem, the Netherlands, in August.

Among the 17 vets on hand for Thursday night's fracas are 1982's second leading hitter at .377, senior Craig Filippi of Oakbrook, Ill.; senior pitcher Hans Herzog (.84 in '82), and last spring's No. 2 home run hitter with eight and third-leading RBI man with 34, Brad Winkler of Richmond, Ky.

Meanwhile, across the Humphrey Coliseum parking lot, Head Coach Bob Boyd takes the wraps off his Mississippi State 1982-83 basketball forces Friday with the opening practice.

Coach Boyd, who is starting his second season with the Bulldogs after posting an 8-19 mark last winter, is confident that State will move into a more competitive position in the upcoming SEC race.

MSU will build around three seniors—6-4 guard Jeff Malone of Macon, Ga., 6-5 guard Terry Lewis of New Orleans, La., and 6-9 center Kalpatrick Wells of Vidalia, La.—as well as veterans guard Jeff Norwood of Tupelo, guard Butch Pierre of Darrow, La., and forward Mackey Whyte of Jackson.

Boyd will be featured at a 1 p.m. media conference at McArthur Hall on Tuesday, Oct. 18, after he has had a chance to view the six returning lettermen, five outstanding signees, and some non-scholarship performers in the early workouts.

State athletic business personnel have already mounted a season ticket sales drive for the 14-game home schedule which begins with a Nov. 16 exhibition game with Marathon Oil Co. of Lexington, Ky.

Information and free season ticket brochures are available at the Humphrey Coliseum windows from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. weekdays or by writing: Season Basketball Tickets, P.O. Drawer 5327, Miss. State, Ms 39762.

USM Gulf Park offering Coastwise Navigation course

"Coastwise Navigation" is the title of a non-credit course being offered through the Conferences and Workshops Department at USM Gulf Park.

It may seem ironic but a mariner is safer in deep water than he is "coasting," for the greatest dangers are inshore. The rocks, coral, sand, or, collectively, shoals and shallow water, are the hidden dangers.

Knowledge of depth of water, height of tide, current set and drift and the cases thereof, and accurate direction and speed—these are the factors the prudent mariner must know.

The operator of a vessel of any size must always know his position, direction, and distance in relation to any physical danger that could hazard the vessel. The "whys, wherefores, and therefores" of how not to be unduly exposed to these dangers will be taught—tides, currents, compass, chart, lead, and log are but a few of the classes.

Practical classroom and "homework" problems are considered essential and are provided to enhance the student's confidence.

Upon completion the student will exult in confidence as a navigator and should successfully pass the piloting portion of any Coast Guard licensing program.

The primary instructor will be Commander E. S. Hutchinson, U.S. Coast Guard (Ret.).

Cdr. Hutchinson was a Surface Operations Specialist with over 30 years service and experience in the Coast Guard.

This experience ranges from small boat operations as an enlisted boatswain's mate to larger boat commands as a chief boatswain's mate, and later through the officer ranks aboard ships as navigator up to commanding officer.

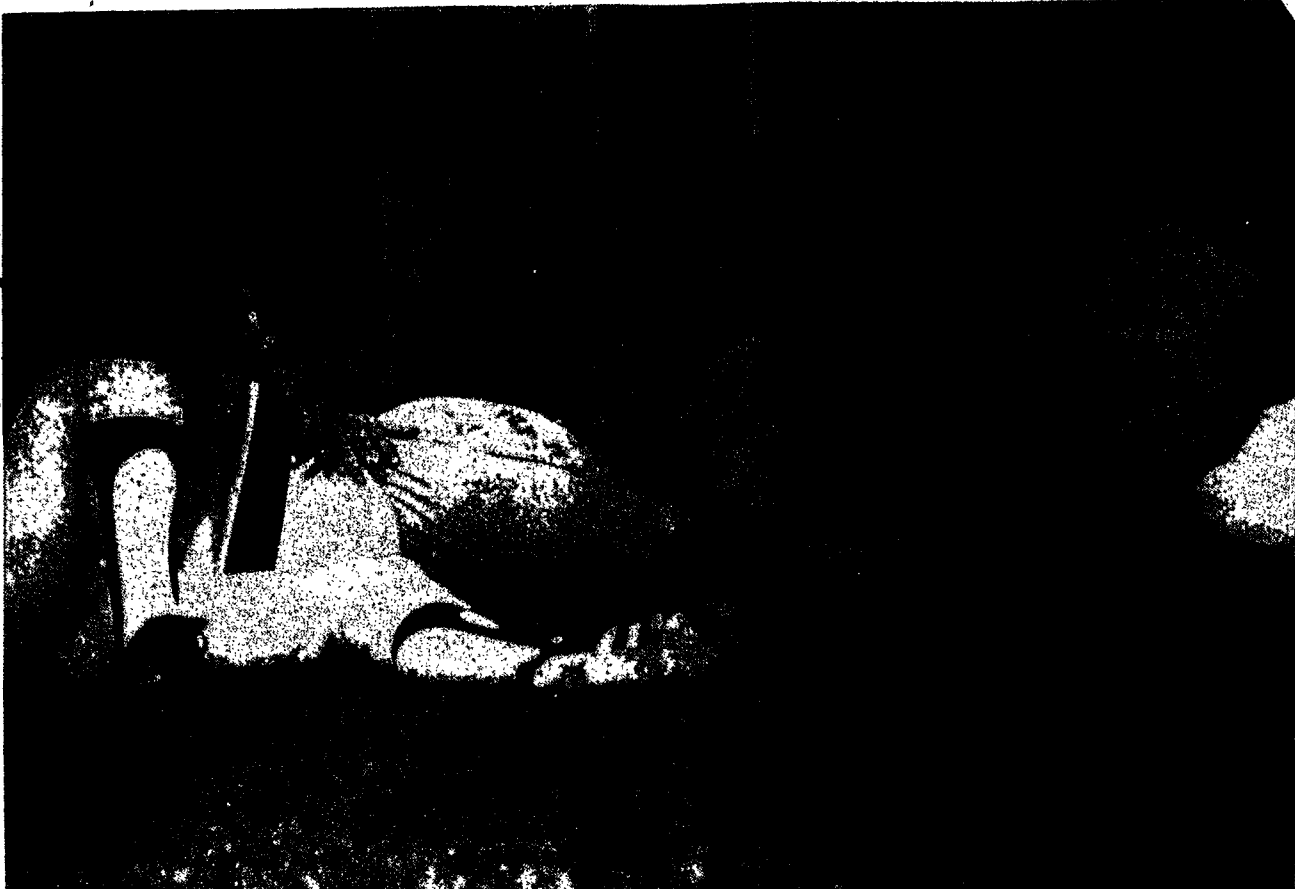

He is a certified instructor of celestial navigation and has taught it at GCJC, Jefferson Davis Campus and USM Gulf Park.

Registration will be held from 6 to 6:30 p.m. on Oct. 21 in room 207 Lloyd Hall on the Gulf Park campus.

This "Coastwise Navigation" course will start at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 21. Three hour classes will be held every Monday and Thursday evening through Dec. 9.

Enrollment for this course is limited; please pre-register to assure a place in the class.

For additional information, or to pre-register, call Conferences and Workshops, USM Gulf Park, at 864-2155. Cdr. Hutchinson can also be contacted at (601) 452-9875.

RELAXING BETWEEN GAMES—Pearl River College's baseball Wildcats have completed a 19 game fall schedule. Ned Eades, the Wildcats' second year head coach put his team up against the University of Southern Mississippi, William Carey and the University of New Orleans this fall in preparation for the 'Cats 58 game schedule next spring. Here, from left, pitcher Wayne Best, Mcayune; second baseman Kelly Geroux, St. Stanislaus; third baseman Greg Rogers, Laurel and first baseman Steve Farve of St. Stanislaus take a break between games with the University of New Orleans. The Wildcats posted a 28-11 record last spring and were co-champs of the South Division.

Olympic Records

The record for winning the most Olympic medals was set by swimmer Mark Spitz of the United States. He won a total of 11 nine gold, one silver and one bronze.

points during the first six ballgames, and those points came in two games against East Central and Jones.

Northeast, Holmes, Southwest and East Mississippi did not cross the Bulldog's goal line at all. Gulf Coast's offense has scored 146 points during the year.

Pearl River's defense has given up 77 points while the offense has netted 122 points during the first six games.

The Wildcats and Bulldogs have played three common opponents. PRC defeated East Mississippi 13-10 in the opening game of the year and knocked off Jones 28-16 and East Central 10-7. The Bulldogs white-washed East Mississippi this past weekend and handed Jones 24-14 and East Central 17-14 setbacks.

"You can really forget the records and standings when these two teams meet," Arban said. "This game is rich with tradition and enthusiasm."

The Wildcats won last year's contest 14-10 at home, but the Bulldogs had taken the 1980, '79, '78 and '77 games. The two teams, which are separated by less than 35 miles, have been playing since the 1920's. Pearl River has won 32, lost 17 and tied one.

WILDCAT DEFENDER—Joe Church, linebacker from St. Stanislaus, was named the Pearl River College Wildcat lineman of the week for his play last Saturday night in the Wildcats' 10-7 win over East Central Junior College. The Wildcats spotted the Warriors seven points and then came back to win the South Division contest. The Wildcats will tangle with Gulf Coast this Saturday at Biloxi for the division lead.

NEW HOUSING FORMS EMERGING
QUESTION: With continued increases in construction costs and interest rates, what new types of housing should we expect to see during the next decade? E. J. Clinton

ANSWER: Dear E. J.: As detached, single-family traditional housing becomes more expensive, new and less costly forms of housing are emerging.

In some parts of the country, particularly where land costs are high, homes are already being built which shelter two families. In these houses, the living and kitchen areas are shared by both families while sleeping and bath areas remain separate. The cost per square foot to build such a unit is substantially below that of building two detached houses.

So called mother-in-law units are also being tried. These are designed for rental, and offer a separate living area within a traditional single-family home. Such a unit usually has separate kitchen and bathroom facilities and a separate entrance. Some buyers are turning to this type house with the idea of renting the mother-in-law unit to help pay the mortgage. In addition, such an arrangement is ideal if one of the family members feels the need to invite a relative to move in.

Another innovation in housing is simply a reduction in size and an increase in density, or units per acre. Average square feet per house for newly constructed homes has begun to decrease in recent years. In addition, when more houses are constructed in a smaller area using less material, they are less expensive.

If you are looking for a house, you might want to investigate whether these new forms of housing are available and whether they would serve your housing needs.

UNDERSTANDING HOMEOWNER'S ASSOCIATION BY-LAWS

QUESTION: I am seriously considering the purchase of a condominium. I do not fully understand the workings of a homeowner's association and would appreciate your explaining it for me. T. T. Gulfport

Dear T. T.: Before you buy a condominium unit, make sure you read and understand the deed and the by-laws of the homeowner's association.

The homeowner's association has the authority and responsibility to manage the common elements of the project after the developer gives up control. This however does not imply ownership.

Each individual unit owner has an undivided interest in the common elements which have certain legal consequences. The individual homeowner is responsible for property taxes in the pro rata share; the association is not. A loan must be co-signed by all of the owners since they, not the homeowner's association, own the property.

Condominium ownership also involves certain risks for liability which should be insured. Each unit owner is jointly and severally liable for negligence in the condition and management of common areas. If a third party were injured, any unit owner could be sued if the injury was due to negligence of the association in maintaining the property.

Because a condominium involves the creation of a community with each member of the community having responsibilities to the other members, provisions often provide for a first right of refusal by the association. This provision requires a unit owner seeking to sell his or her unit to notify the association and allow them to purchase the unit at a fair market price.

Before you sign a sales contract, find out as much as you can regarding the homeowner's association.

For answers to questions, write Dr. Dennis Tosh, POB 295, University, Ms. 38677.

Waveland American Legion Post provides $6000 in scholarships

The Bourgeois, Stieffel, Ray Post No. 77 of the American Legion in Waveland, has awarded eight Hancock County students a $500 scholarship each to attend Pearl River College.

Russell Lanham, finance officer, and Russell Sutton, scholarship chairman of the Bourgeois, Stieffel Ray Post No. 77 presented Dr. Marvin R. White, president of Pearl River College, a check for $4,000 to be used for scholarships for four academic and four vocational-technical students enrolled at PRC this fall.

All students within Hancock County were eligible to apply. The recipients were selected based on their need for financial assistance, academic grades or rating and their character, leadership ability and initiative.

Back in April the Bourgeois, Stieffel, Ray American Legion Post awarded four other Hancock County students $500 scholarships each to attend PRC.

"The American Legion in Waveland has provided scholarships for 12 Hancock County students this year," said Marvin

R. White. "This is the largest outside scholarship program we have here at the school."

"We are completely satisfied with what Pearl River College is offering our students," said Bob Barrere, commander of Post 77. "We are happy to make this contribution to our students."

Barrere said he hoped the Waveland American Legion Post will be able to do even more in the near future.

The $500 scholarships take care of the tuition and books for attending Pearl River College both the spring and fall semesters. There is even some left to apply to supplies and/or a meal ticket.

Newest Hancock County students receiving the Bourgeois, Stieffel, Ray American Legion scholarships are: Rodney Necaise, Hancock North Central; Steve Farve, St. Stanislaus; Ricky Ladner, Bay Senior High; Scotty Adams, Bay Senior High; Mimi Ladner, Hancock North Central; Mark Schultz, St. Stanislaus; Jay Ryan, St. Stanislaus; and Fred Bontemps, St. Stanislaus.

WAVELAND LEGION SCHOLARSHIPS—Bourgeois, Stieffel, Ray Post No. 77 of the American Legion in Waveland, has awarded these students $500 scholarships to attend Pearl River College. Receiving the scholarships are from left, Fred Bontemps, St. Stanislaus; Rodney Necaise, Hancock North Central; and Ricky Ladner, Bay Senior High. Post 77 has awarded $6,000 in scholarships to Hancock County students attending Pearl River College this fall.

Management consultant urges early career planning

Too many young people wait too long to get their act together when it comes to their future business careers, according to the head of a human resources management consulting firm.

Andrew Sherwood, president of the Goodrich and Sherwood Company in New York, advises teenagers to begin to plan for their careers as early as possible upon entering high school.

He offers a few tips on how to do this:

—1. Learn how to read with speed and comprehension. Take extra study courses if your reading is weak and then turn off the TV and read, read, read. After college you will have to read reports, industry magazines, business papers and a never-ending pile of correspondence to stay on top of your job and get ahead.

—2. Learn to communicate both orally and in writing. You'll need to sell your ideas to others, convince others to see it your way and to keep your superiors posted on your activities. To do this you'll either have to make oral or written reports and presentations or intercompany memos. Try to take any course that will help develop these skills. Make a special effort when doing book reports, history outlines, English compositions. Seek opportunities to speak on your feet before small or large groups in school as well as after school in other activities.

—3. Learn to be a team player; how to work with others in a common cause. If you're athletic, engage in team sports. Not everyone can win a school letter but all can participate in intermural games. At church, in your neighborhood, at Scouts, at the YMCA - whatever, join in group activities and learn how to get along with others - your superiors as well as your peers.

—4. Learn leadership qualities. If you weren't born with them, watch the natural leaders you know and work to develop their traits. One of the best ways to learn how to lead is to engage in extracurricular activities which will later be as helpful to your career as scholastic credits. Get active in student government organizations. Run for a class office, join the clubs in school and be active in young peoples' activities in your community, seeking leadership opportunities.

—5. Learn all you can about the career or careers that interest you. Read up on them. Talk to relatives or friends who are in that particular career and get their advice. Then choose the career you want so that you can select courses of study that will provide you with the knowledge you'll need to help you get a job in your chosen field. If you're headed for college, zero in on your major now so you can design your courses of study in high school to better prepare you for that major.

—6. Learn how to concentrate on your studies and how to discipline yourself so that you get the kind of grades needed to get into the college of your choice or will look good to a prospective employer if you go right to work after high school.

—7. Learn all you can to help you in your future career outside of school as well. During school holidays and summer vacations get some practical experience. For instance: if you want a career in journalism or public relations, work for your local weekly or daily newspaper - without pay if necessary; if you plan to be a teacher, look for a job as a counselor in a summer camp; if you want to be a nurse, do volunteer work for your local hospital, etc. Take any job you can get at any rate of pay so long as it gives you a leg up on your future career.

Remember, Sherwood says, not only does the early bird get the worm but the early career planner, gets the job he or she wants, doing what he or she wants.

HEALTH WARNING: BEWARE OF LEAD!

The dangers of lead to health are well known and rarely disputed. Ingested in the form of paint chips or residue from auto emissions, lead causes serious illness and even mental retardation, particularly among children. According to the Second National Health and Nutrition Examination survey, a fifth of inner-city black children under five years old have enough lead in their blood to hinder their intellectual and behavioral development.

"No one argues that lead is not a dangerous toxic substance," says Toby Moffett, D-Conn., Chairman of the House Subcommittee on Environment, Energy and Natural Resources. As a result, there has been an almost universal drive to cut down on usage of lead. The paint and food canning industries have voluntarily reduced their use of lead dramatically; HUD has several programs aimed at detoxifying lead-based paint in HUD-associated housing; OSHA has set stringent standards on lead levels in the workplace; and the EPA for almost a decade has required that new cars use unleaded gas.

Now, however, this drive is sputtering to a halt. In fact, many of the gains in recent years are being reversed - all because of a loophole in the law.

Of all the efforts to reduce lead, the most important is to reduce the lead content of gasoline. If lead could be eliminated from gasoline altogether, 90 percent of the lead in the air would be eliminated.

When the Environmental Protection Agency imposed air pollution standards in the 1970s, auto makers began installing catalytic converters on new autos. The catalyst in these converters is destroyed by lead in gasoline, therefore, U.S. oil refiners had to produce unleaded gasoline without lead additives as octane boosters.

As a result, from 1976 to 1980, lead in gasoline dropped from 190,000 to 90,000 tons per year, causing the average blood-lead level in humans to drop by almost 37%. Unleaded gasoline, as a result of the regulations, has grown from 13% of the market in 1975 to 57% today, and the amount of lead in regular leaded gasoline has declined significantly.

Since 1980, EPA regulations required U.S. oil companies to add no more than an average of 0.5 grams of lead per gallon of gas that they refine from crude. To meet this standard, they have invested over $5 billion in new refining equipment. Exempt from these regulations, however, are blenders and certain small refiners who, quoting "economic hardship," are free to add as much as 2.65 grams of lead to a gallon.

Herein lies the tale: a classic case of fast-moving entrepreneurs outwitting the lawmakers and bureaucrats.

The major oil companies, who all complied with the law at great expense, now find themselves losing market share to gasoline blenders and small refiners who produce cheaper gasoline by adding larger quantities of lead. Gasoline to anyone but a biochemist is a commodity. Insofar as 2.65 gram/gallon of lead in gasoline is considerably cheaper to produce than 0.5 gram/gallon, the blenders will take advantage of their loophole and gain market share - to the detriment of the air-breathing public.

Already this is happening. Jumping into the act with gasoline blenders are foreign refiners, also exempt from regulation. These foreign refiners and blenders have neither made investments in refining facilities nor in equipment to comply with federal lead standards. They are simply taking advantage of their preferential treatment to sell leaded gasoline at low cost. Given that leaded gasoline is 48 percent of the U.S. market, any one percentage increase in that market quickly translates into millions of dollars of quick profit.

Many concerned citizens are asking the government to close a legal loophole and step up its efforts to protect us from lead poisoning.

On October 1, 1981, when EPA was supposed to apply strict compliance standards to blenders, importers, and small refiners, the rule making was delayed and very loose standards have been allowed to continue. This situation which allows large quantities of lead to be added to gasoline is in direct contrast to the very essence of our government of laws that everyone should be subject to the same rules.

One has to look hard to find a similar situation where the major oil companies, the medical community, and the environmentalists are all allied in support of a law. One can only comment in tribute to our democratic system that laws have a way of forcing adversaries to become bedfellows.

EPA data shows that average lead content is now increasing, even though sales of unleaded gasoline are also increasing. This is because more lead is being used by those who qualify under the so-called "blender loophole" such as small refiners, blenders, and foreign importers. If this loophole is not closed, it is likely that even more leaded gasoline will be produced by these exempt entities.

The current signals from the EPA are not encouraging. In a recent letter, EPA's Richard Kozlowski admitted that the 0.5 standard meant not 0.500 but in fact could be "rounded off" (i.e., increased) to 0.549. In December 1981, EPA Administrator Anne Gorsuch met with representatives of a small refinery and told them that the EPA did not intend to apply the tougher standard it applied to most refineries.

"Backroom Deals at EPA" was how the Washington Post scathingly referred to these developments. If nothing is done, in several years the amount of lead emitted by automobiles into the air could more than double.

The total costs to the nation will be enormous. The $5.2 billion already invested in creating "clean" refineries will be largely wasted, many U.S. refinery workers will lose their jobs to foreign importers, and the nation's health bill will soar.

PRC registers record numbers

Dr. Marvin R. White, president of Pearl River College, told the PRC Board of Trustees, at a recent meeting, that more students than ever registered for the fall semester.

"We have a total enrollment of 1,651 at the Poplarville campus," White said. "That's 160 more than last year, the previous all-time record."

Total enrollment, including Pearl River College's Forrest, Lamar, and Hancock County centers, is 2,530. This does not include night classes and/or industry start-up programs across the six-county district. On the Poplarville campus there are 810 academic, 400 technical, 301 vocational and 140 nursing students. The Forrest County Center enrollment is 386. Two-hundred sixty-eight are registered at Hancock and 225 at the Lamar County complex at Purvis.

Dr. White told the Board 500 students were living on campus and that PRC was transporting 474 students every day. On the Poplarville campus there are 901 females and 750 males.

Pearl River College's million dollar building project is almost complete as the board approved progress payments to general contractor Carter-Mullings of Columbia and architect Fred Wagner of Bay St. Louis. September payments included $11,356 to Carter-Mullings and $200 to Wagner.

Ron Holmes, PRC's business manager informed the PRC Board that Pearl River had been approved for a Title III Institutional Strengthening Program and will include basic skills, career programs, and computer services divisions.

The $200,000 grant has been approved for three years, however, funding for the project at this time is for only one year. Holmes was given permission to advertise for a supervisor and nine full-time faculty members to implement the program for one year. The grant takes care of faculty salaries, equipment and supplies.

John Watts of Columbia and Julia McKinney of Hattiesburg were approved by the Board to teach art and developmental English during the current school year.

Dr. White also informed the Board that Marion and Jefferson Davis Counties approved continuation of their two and one half mill support of the college, which had been earmarked for the college's building program for the past 10 years.

The Board was told that the Pearl River County Supervisors denied the college's request to do the same, stating they needed the funds for their general fund.

Dr. White said he hoped the Pearl River County Supervisors would pledge the two and one half mills to the school after this year. "We need the money to upgrade Pearl River Hall," Dr. White said. "We are in desperate need of additional dormitory space."

DeLisle PTA plans Halloween Carnival

The DeLisle PTA held its first open house meeting recently.

Mrs. Patricia Zatarain, principal, introduced the staff and installed the new PTA officers.

Ruth Chinn, president, presided over the meeting. Plans for the upcoming year were discussed.

A Halloween Carnival was set for Oct. 30 from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Elizabeth Ladner.

legislative chairman, urged members to vote for the Lay Board of Education in November.

Valery Malley, membership chairman, discussed the membership drive and contest.

This year the membership increased by 70 percent over last year.

Patsy Cuevas won the door prize and Ms. Carrie-Morel's fourth grade class won the Movie Party for the best parent attendance.

MSU reports record enrollment

The 1982 fall semester has brought Mississippi State University the largest enrollment in its 103-year history.

According to the Office of Records and Registration, a total of 12,049 students are currently attending classes at the main campus at Starkville—approximately 4.5 percent more than last year's headcount of 11,531.

The previous high enrollment at Starkville was 11,727 in 1976.

University officials said the record number of students resulted from a combined increase in the number of freshmen and transfers and a high retention rate among those already enrolled.

Of the total Starkville—campus enrollment, 7,271 are men and 4,778 are women—a 60-40 ratio.

Not surprisingly, the largest number of students at the Starkville campus—1,357—are from Oktibbeha County, where Starkville and MSU are located. Hinds is second with 1,100, followed by Lowndes with 683, Lee with 379, and Harrison with 374.

Tennessee is the home state of the largest number—211—of non-resident students. Alabama is second with 226, followed by Florida with 161, Louisiana with 98, and Arkansas with 90.

News Briefs

COLLEGE DAY

High school and junior college students are invited to attend the annual High School-Junior College Day at the University of Mississippi on Saturday, Oct. 16.

The day will begin with an official welcome for the students by Ole Miss Chancellor Porter L. Fortune Jr. at 9:30 a.m. in Fulton Chapel on the Oxford campus. The students will be given information at that meeting on how to pick up discount tickets for that afternoon's Homecoming football game which pits Ole Miss against Texas Christian University at 1:30 p.m.

Entertainment will be supplied for the visiting students prior to the game in the Grove and academic displays will be set up in the Ole Miss Union from 9 a.m. until noon. Guided tours of the campus also will be available for the students. More information on High School-Junior College Day may be obtained by calling the Pre-Admissions Office, telephone, 601-232-7378.

JUSTICE TO SPEAK

Justice Harry Blackmun of the United States Supreme Court will visit The University of Mississippi Friday, Oct. 22, to deliver the third annual James McClure Memorial Lecture in Law at Fulton Chapel. The public is invited to attend Justice Blackmun's 10:30 a.m. address titled "A Glimpse or Two Inside the Court." He will be introduced by Dr. Parham Williams, dean of the Ole Miss Law School. The McClure Lectures were established at the law school by James McClure Jr. of Sardis and Mrs. Tupper McClure Lampton of Columbia as a memorial to their father James McClure, who received both bachelor of science and law degrees from Ole Miss.

UM HOMECOMING University of Mississippi students, alumni and friends will gather Oct. 15-16 on the Oxford campus of 1982 Homecoming activities.

The Ole Miss Rebels host Texas Christian University in the last Oxford football game for the season with kickoff set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Weekend activities begin with the Thursday evening performance of "Chicago," a raucous '20s style musical.

The production, which begins at 8 p.m. in Fulton Chapel, also will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings. Tickets are free to students with valid I.D. Cards, $4 for adults and $3 for children.

Friday, recipients of the Alumni Association's 1982 Distinguished Service Awards will be honored.

President

Thomas Jefferson once wrote that were it left to him to choose a government without newspapers or newspapers without government, he would take the latter.

That's a thought we might ponder during this National Newspaper Week.

What did Jefferson mean? Obviously, that so long as a people are free to receive news and information about problems, grievances or injustices, they have the ability to do something to correct these things.

If they have no government, they may form one. But if they are left in ignorance, they cannot act in their own self interest.

When they are uninformed, they become the victims of their government's misdoings.

That is why, of course, that totalitarian rulers in other lands are quick to silence the free press. When the press is free, so may be the people. When the press is silent, the people's freedom is lost.

The wise authors of our Bill of Rights understood this well. So they wrote the 1st Amendment to the U.S. Constitution to guarantee the people a free press. This is a protection for all people, it should be understood, not just for newspaper editors.

Of Mississippi's 116 newspapers, the great majority are published in small cities and towns. Most are weeklies. They are not engaged in any great exposes such as the Watergate affair of the Nixon administration. Rather, they report what goes on at the city council meeting, the board of supervisors, and school board meetings.

But the purpose is the same for newspapers of all sizes — to inform the people.

Newspapers usually are the first to alert the people to closed meetings of public bodies, for when the people are shut out, public officials often are attempting to avoid revealing their actions.

Newspapers have other purposes, of course. They entertain. They amuse. They provide editorial leadership and guidance.

They record personal milestones in print — births, deaths, graduations, achievements, weddings — whatever their readers are interested in knowing.

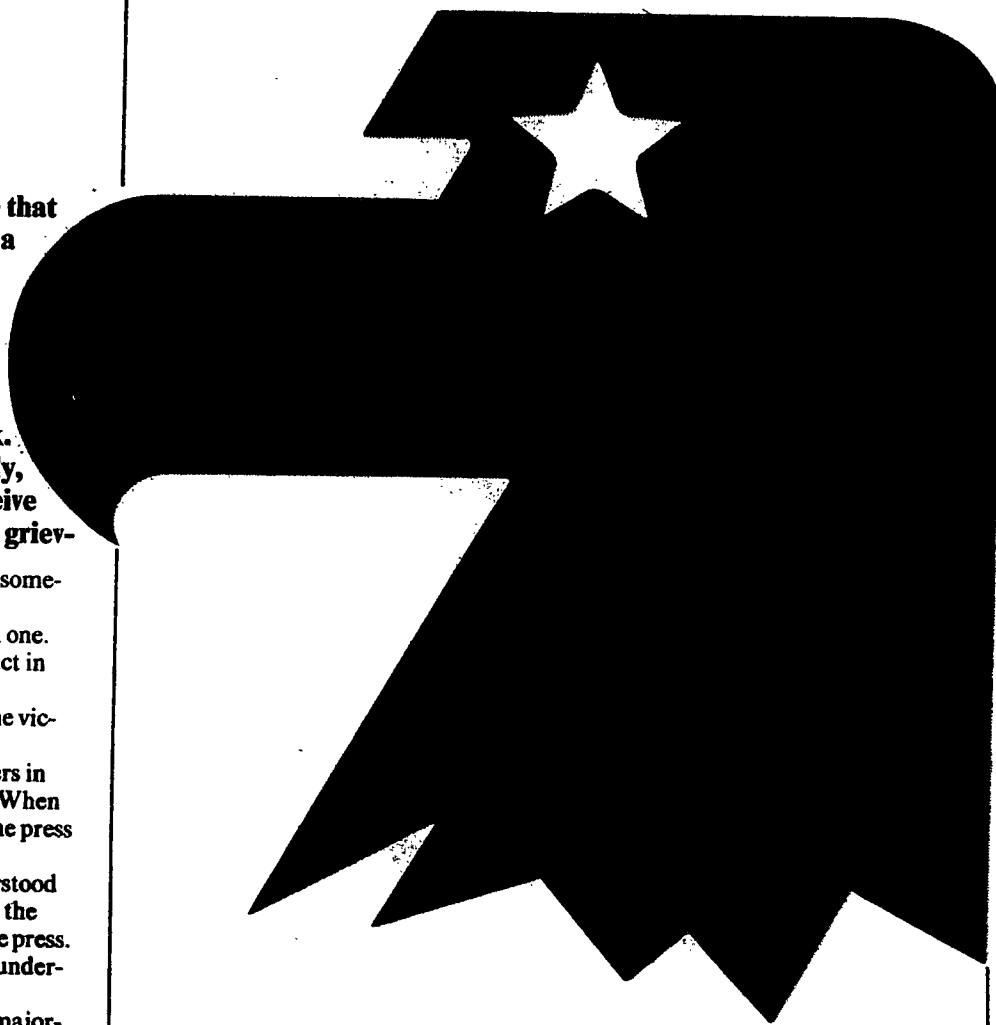

They also provide an advertising medium for promoting community business and sales. This is the major source of newspapers' revenues.

Newspapers are, in most instances, profit-earning businesses. But they are businesses with a special public service function.

When newspapers are financially sound, they can perform their public service role best, withstanding the pressures of those who might interfere with the proper reporting of news events.

The reader is best served when he reads his newspaper for information and ideas, but always retaining his ability to draw his own conclusions and opinions about what he reads.

NATIONAL

WEEK

OCTOBER 11-16

It is with great pleasure I commend the Mississippi Press Association and the contribution newspapers make to the great state of Mississippi.

The people of our state have been mighty good to me over the years. As your Congressman, representing the Third District, I have tried to serve you in a reasonable and dignified manner.

Please join me on November 2 in assuring effective leadership in Washington.

Thank you,

Mississippi newspapers share varied heritage

Mississippi's first newspaper, The Mississippi Gazette, published in 1799 by B.M. Stokes, was a staunchly partisan publication that emphasized editorials over news, according to study written by Murray Orman in the 1930s as a federal Works Progress Administration job.

Many of the state's early newspapers, typical of the times, were strongly partisan, frequently tied to political parties in an era long before the concept of objectivity came to the fore.

By 1808, Mississippi had only four newspapers, all of them in Natchez, a prosperous port town that was then the heart of the new territory. Jackson had not yet been founded.

The state's oldest newspaper still in publication is the Woodville Republican, whose first issue came out in December, 1823.

Early Mississippi newspapers, often published as sidelines rather than as business enterprises in themselves, did not have the same devotion to deadlines as their modern counterparts.

The Stingaree, the first newspaper printed on the Gulf Coast, carried the following notice in its Sat., Oct. 2, 1846 edition: "In consequence of a fit of laziness which attacked us early in the week, we are behind the times a day or two with the paper; in consequence of which our next issue will be delayed until next Tuesday morning."

After the Civil War, Republicans dominated state politics. Republican newspapers, heavily supported by the lucrative government printing contracts that had traditionally gone to Democratic papers, sprung up around the state.

To combat this, a group of older, Democratic Mississippi publishers formed the Mississippi Press Association.

When the Democrats recaptured power as Reconstruction was drawing to an end, the Republican press died.

The press association later took up several crusades, encouraging the federal government to assume responsibility for flood control on the Mississippi, and advocating prison reform.

Today, the association is a coalition of 117 daily and weekly newspapers, who operate independently of each other, but join in sponsoring seminars and meetings on professional problems and issues.

Produced for National Newspaper week under the sponsorship of the Mississippi Press Association. Printed by the Star-Herald, Kosciusko. Content was coordinated by the Jackson Daily News and Clarion-Ledger, Jackson.

Mississippians salute 1st Amendment free press guarantee

Across Mississippi, citizens have strongly felt beliefs about "What Freedom of the Press" means.

For the most part, in random interviews conducted by reporters in cities across the state, common citizens cited the responsibility of the press to provide fair and accurate coverage, to seek the truth and expose it to the public. Many noted that press freedom is a two-edged sword that is sometimes used too zealously. But none said he or she could do without it.

For Roger Smith, 25, a Laurel librarian, "Freedom of the press means no one having any influence on what is printed in a particular newspaper. There is no censorship, just reporting the truth.

"As a librarian," Smith said, "it is important to us, too. But we call it intellectual freedom."

Brenda Hawkins, 35, a former Vicksburg teacher and now a self-professed homemaker, said freedom of the press "means everyone has a right to express feelings about any issue.

"Our country was established on the premise of freedom," Ms. Hawkins asserted, "and freedom of the press is part of that heritage."

For Murry Foster, 35, and Madalene Daniell, 28, both of Hattiesburg, freedom of the press is a sacred trust unique to this country.

"I think it would be one of the basic freedoms of being an American," said Foster, a locomotive engineer. "We're privileged to have it because we're one of the few countries that does have it," he said.

Ms. Daniell added that this unique freedom also means responsibility on the part of the press. "It's the opportunity," she said, "to hear different opinions from different people who have the responsibility of reporting the news honestly so that I can make a responsible decision myself on the issue."

To Frank Aderholdt Jr., a 34-year-old Clarksdale accountant, "Freedom of the press means to me at least three things," he said. "First, a continuing opportunity for free and open discussion of every point of view, ideally combined with respect and understanding.

"Second," he said, humorously, is "the wonderful privilege of every person to make a complete fool of himself by saying exactly what he thinks.

"And, three," Aderholdt concluded on a more serious note, there is "the precious right of the truth to be heard clearly and without distortion. For, the truth — especially God's truth — will always triumph in the end."

A responsibility toward finding the truth figured in largely, also, in the view of Dee Ann O'Neil, 37, a leasing agent for a motor company in Picayune. Freedom of the Press "means having no restrictions on truth," she said. "We have the opportunity to learn the facts about all facets of life through the press, thereby giving each person the ability to judge for (himself) what is truth."

"Freedom of the press means all the other freedoms that I enjoy in our free land," said Helen C. Bolton, 62, of Greenwood.

"Along the line of my thinking, I can more easily understand 'freedom of the press' by equating it with 'freedom of speech,'" which is also guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution.

"I cannot imagine what life would be like if I were unable to express my thoughts as I see fit — as long as I do not harm anyone's reputation or as long as I am truthful in statements — for fear of government reprisal," she said.

"I tend to take freedom of the press for granted," though, she added. "For, during my lifetime, there has always been this freedom and I pray to God there always will be."

According to Greg Maxey, 33, a city planner in Clarksdale, "Freedom of the press to me means accurate, unbiased coverage of newsworthy events upon which opinions can be formed and some decisions influenced."

Dr. Kathie Gilbert, a 39-year-old professor of economics at Mississippi State University in Starkville, basically agreed, but commented that freedom of the press has positive and negative aspects that reporters and editors need to be aware of.

"It provides the opportunity to know," she said. Particularly, in that "if you can't find it (needed information) in one (newspaper) you can find it in another."

But sometimes, she said, "In the process of informing us we get to know too much. Sometimes, we get an over-reaction. There is that element of it. There is a freedom to use or abuse."

Despite "occasional abuse," however, she said, the guarantee of freedom of the press "is worth the cost," for it "makes for more open government.

"There is a watchdog," she said. "It tempers the tendency (of politicians) to want to do things in secret."

"Freedom of the press is the ultimate expression of confidence in a system of government," said Vagn Hansen, 38, a professor of political science at Delta State University.

Its opposite, censorship, he said, "is bred in fear by governments of its own citizens or fear within the citizenry of one another."

Despite what he calls "current trends" in the direction of censorship recently, however, Hansen said. "I have faith that the people of the U.S. and the government of the U.S. have enough confidence in one another to maintain the high degree of freedom that we come to value so much."

Even to those of a young age, the concept of the right of a free press makes an impression. According to Mohua Hazra, an 8-year-old 3rd-grader in Mamie Martin Elementary School in Brookhaven, a free press means "The news and all the details. All the good news and the bad news. All about the world and everything else."

"It means we're free," said Shanna Williamson, 8, also in the 3rd grade at Mamie Martin. "And the people that write newspapers are free to write anything they want to in them."

Compiled by reporters of Mississippi Press Association newspapers and written by Jackson Daily News staff writers Jim Ewing and Steve Hallam.

Opening state government to public a long battle

Citizen access to government meetings and records is considered a basic right of the public and a basic necessity to the press in its role of being the eyes and ears of the public.

Although news organizations and citizen groups have been in the forefront in advocating laws to ensure access to government, openness in government has not been easy to come by in Mississippi.

It was not until 1975 that Mississippi lawmakers adopted the state's first open meetings law.

In 1982, Mississippi remains the only state in the nation without a law requiring that records of government be open to the public.

Until 1975, whether citizens could attend a meeting of a city council, board of supervisors, legislative committee or any government body was entirely up to the government officials running the meeting. Municipal governments probably were the most open, but that again depended on the makeup of a board at a particular time.

Legislative committees generally operated behind closed doors.

With lobbying from press organizations, various citizen organizations and a small group of lawmakers, the Legislature in 1975 adopted an open meetings act.

"It being essential to the fundamental philosophy of the American constitutional form of representative government and to the maintenance of a democratic society that public business be performed in an open and public manner, and that citizens

"We cannot afford to allow our concept of Jeffersonian democracy and people's government to stop at a closed meeting room or sealed filing cabinet.

"A more open government is always in the public's interest."

State Rep. Dennis Dollar, Gulfport

be advised of and be aware of the performance of the public officials and the deliberations that go into the making of public policy, it is hereby declared to be the policy of the State of Mississippi that formation and determination of public policy is public business and shall be conducted at open meetings except..."

The preamble is impressive, but the law fell far short of an effective open meetings statute, which would require reluctant officials to open the doors of government to the public.

There were major loopholes in the law, which allowed most government officials who had no interest in complying with the spirit of the act to refuse access to the press and public.

The law simply provided that if three-fifths of the membership of a government body voted to close the doors, they would be closed.

The loopholes allowed government bodies to: meet in secret for any reason; not give any advance notice of a meeting; and vote in secret to close the door, which allowed no public accountability on the vote. There also was no penalty for violation of the weak statute.

The law was considered little more than a nuisance for government officials, who wanted to conduct business in secret.

In 1981, Common Cause, a citizen's group, the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, the Mississippi Press Association and various organizations, were successful in support of a bill to strengthen the law. It closed one of the major loopholes, which allowed officials to close the door for any reason. The law now contains a list of reasons for which a public body may conduct business in secret, such as acquisition of property or investigative matters.

However, the law remains weak, generally leaving citizen access to the discretion of officials. The Legislature is specifically exempted from the law.

There is no penalty for violations or requirement for notification. It has resulted in at least two successful court actions to open illegally closed sessions.

The lack of an open meetings law remains the major barrier to public access in Mississippi.

Proposals to provide some form of an open records law have died in the Legislature for the past three sessions. During the 1982 session, the House and Senate approved versions of a bill that generally opened records, but exempted several specific types of documents. A compromise version never gained final approval.

Opponents of the law say it will be administratively difficult. They argue it could open up some laws that should be confidential and close others that now might be open. They say the state really has no problems with access, despite the lack of a law.

Supporters, however, say the lack of access is a problem for citizens generally, and not just reporters. In fact, newspapers with time and resources hire attorneys to fight for access.

State Rep. Dennis Dollar of Gulfport, wrote in support of open records last year: "We cannot afford to allow our concept of Jeffersonian democracy and people's government to stop at a closed meeting room or sealed filing cabinet."

"A more open government is always in the public's interest."
